GRANT AND WILSON.

Immense Meeting in Washington—Speeches and Enthusiasm—Illuminations and Transparencies.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Grant and Wilson ratification meeting at the City Hall in this city to-night was a great and brilliant political demonstration, as far as it could be such by an immense attendance of people. There were many distinguished speakers, and the display of transparencies, fire-works and decorations was good and extensive. Among the speakers were Senator NYE, Hon. WM. WILLIAMS, of Indiana; Gov. SAMUEL BARD, of Tennessee; Prof. LANGSTON, of Howard University; Gen. CHIPMAN, the District Delegate in Congress; HENRY O. CONNER, of Iowa. The resolutions approve the Philadelphia platform as worthy to receive the support of the people in every part of the Union. And indorse the nomination of GRANT and WILSON. They are three in number and brief. A large platform had been erected, extending the whole length of the central portico. Over it was suspended a cluster of Chinese lanterns, and the speakers stood under a semi-circular scroll of gas-jets, bearing the names, GRANT and WILSON. There were transparencies with portraits of both these leaders. Chinese lanterns were hung along all the streets for several blocks. There was also speaking from the steps of both wings of the hall. The colored people were out in full force, and in private conversations that one would hear on the outer edge of the throng, there were the most enthusiastic expressions for GRANT and laughter at "Uncle HORACE."

VIRGINIA.

Republican Nomination for Congress in the Second District—A Harmonious Convention.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., June 25.—Hon. JAMES H. PLATT was today renominated for Congress by the Republican Convention of the Second District of Virginia by acclamation. The proceedings of the Convention were harmonious throughout.

KANSAS.

Serenade to Senator Caldwell—He will Vindicate his Good Name.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, June 25.—Senator CALDWELL, having returned to this city on Sunday, was serenaded last night by a large concourse of citizens, and in a brief speech responded to the compliment. Referring to the persecutions and calumnies that had followed him from his State to the United States Senate, he said he did not believe one human being, uninspired by mercenary or envious motives, had given the charges character or credence; that he would meet these charges and vindicate the good name so long and so uniformly placed in him by his kind neighbors.

Two Republican State Conventions Called by the State Committee.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, June 25.—The Republican State Central Committee met to-day and called two State Conventions, one to nominate State officers and a State Central Committee, to be held in Topeka Sept. 4th, and the other to nominate Congressmen and Presidential electors, to be held in Lawrence the same date.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A New-Jersey Opinion of the Tammany Candidate.

[The following letter aptly describes the state of feeling toward the Tammany candidate in New-Jersey:]

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I am not in favor of the election of Mr. GREELEY to the Presidency, and that for a number of reasons. First, though I am willing to admit that he possesses extraordinary ability as a journalistic advocate—the only field in which he has ever shone—I cannot agree that he unites those talents (such as firmness, moderation, practical judgment, knowledge of men, &c.) which should characterize the nominee of an intelligent and patriotic party for the office of Chief Magistrate of the American people. In the next place, while I am ready to concede him trustworthy in private dealings, I also believe him to be politically dishonest. Witness, as a marked instance of weak, underhanded scheming, his letter to the loyal Governors during the early part of the second Lincoln campaign. I think that there are still further reasons why GREELEY should not be indorsed by good men, prominent among which are the character of those who compose the party which now hails him as its new Moses, and the fact that that party, by faithlessly hastening to Cincinnati, endeavored, even if we put the most harmless construction upon its acts, to coerce the action of the regular Republican Convention, by presenting to it the alternative of disruption or the acceptance of a possibly unfit and positively irregular candidate. Can we trust as a ruler one who has already disregarded his most solemn obligations, and is now found consorting with those whom he has frequently and vehemently stigmatized as traitors?

In palliation of the disloyal haste which characterized the Cincinnati movement, it is urged that that movement was mainly intended as a warning to Philadelphia, and that GRANT's renomination was really a foregone conclusion. A sufficient answer to the first of these positions is, that HORACE GREELEY and GRATZ BROWN are not the men to knowingly convert themselves into Siamese-twins—draw for the sake of warning say nay; and to the second, it may be replied, that such a movement required for its justification something more substantial than mere prophecy. GRANT is notedly a quiet, unostentatious man, and who can say that, before the tongues of slander had assailed him, he desired a re-election? JEFFERSON's excuse for seeking a second term was, that he wished a general testimonial from the people to show the true popularity of the criminations which had been heaped upon him; and may not GRANT have finally sought the Presidential office again to prove that the ill-will of a few cannot be taken as evidence of the vilipendency of the many? Again, where, although he has quite fulfilled the expectations of the country, and faithfully discharged the duties of his office, the people, through partiality for the "one-term" principle, feel like asking the President to make way for a new incumbent, will anything unite them upon renomination so surely as the pouring upon him of undeserved libel or slander?

When looking at the Cincinnati movement from this stand-point, I cannot avoid the conviction that it was not intended as a warning, but meant, rather, an attempt at a serious disruption of the Republican Party, and the union of the disaffected portion thereof with the Democracy in a desperate grasp after power.

With us, the nomination of Mr. GREELEY, and the action of the various State Democratic Conventions, have had the effect of driving back to the regular ranks the better portion of those Republicans who, before Cincinnati, were willing to see the present Administration changed, provided the integrity and ability of the nominee for the succession were such as to give reasonable assurance of at least an equally prosperous term. Yours, very truly, R. M.

SUMMIT, Union County, N. J., Thursday, June 20, 1872.

The Campaign.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I left Broome County, New-York, on the 19th inst., to spend my Summer vacation in "The Pine Tree State." I have taken the Semi-weekly Tribune ever since I was large enough to take any paper. I have always liked the paper. I have always considered it a good thing to have in the family; I expect to take it a good many years more. In fact, we take fourteen different newspapers, representing every shade of political sentiment. I am anxious to be informed on both sides of political questions of importance; hence when the Tribune turned so decidedly against what it before had upheld, I subscribed for the TIMES, knowing that it is a great power in sustaining what a large majority of our people believe to be right. Although I subscribed in New-York, I had the paper sent to this place. I have received the first copies of my subscription and they have been carefully read. I write this to confirm the idea in your last issue that the Republicans will be perfectly satisfied if the Baltimore Convention nominate Mr. GREELEY. I have made considerable effort to confer with different parties during my journey of 700 miles, and the universal desire is to have the Democracy adopt the Cincinnati nominees. In conversation with hundreds I have not found a dissenting voice among Republicans. In this portion of Maine, among colleges and industries of every description, where all is enterprise, growth and animation, from the farm, garden, work-shop and school-room up to every department of the world's energy, I have not yet found or heard of a Republican who upholds the Reform (?) ticket. Mr. GREELEY has many friends as an editor, but few as a (prospective) President.

I wish to say here what I have often said and heard others say, since the opposition to Gen. GRANT first originated: Just as soon as one instance of willful neglect of duty or of corruption in the management of the national affairs is proved against President GRANT, then will I cease to stand by him. I was under Gen. GRANT all through the Wilderness campaign and the closing scenes of the rebellion. I watched his solicitude for the Union and his magnanimity toward the conquered foe, and it is very hard for me to believe that one who has done so much for the home of liberty—our common country—would do one act derogatory to the public good and the welfare of all our people.

I have carefully and candidly read and reread Senator SUMNER's great speech, the investigations of all the committees and the influential journals of all parties, and am only more deeply convinced of the honesty of the present Administration.

After the 1st of August you may send the WEEKLY TIMES, now sent to the undersigned, Readfield, Maine, to the same name, Whitney's Point, Broome County, N. Y.

Most Respectfully, T. H. ROBERTS.

READFIELD, Me., Monday, June 24, 1872.

Horace White on Horace Greeley.

As HORACE WHITE, of the Chicago Tribune, is now one of the principal supporters of Mr. GREELEY for President, it may be interesting to recall Mr. WHITE's opinion of his friend, as published in 1866:

"HORACE GREELEY is not now, and never has been, a man who ought to be trusted with an official position requiring practical wisdom, ordinary statesmanship, or firm, consistent action. For twenty-five years he has been a marplot in council, an unreliable commander in action, a misanthrope in victory, and a riotous disorganizer in defeat. He has always been fanatical in his demands for the extremest measures, and when the party has reached the eve of triumph, invariably thrusts himself forward as a negotiator of terms of surrender to the enemy. His course during the war was but a repetition of his course in politics. In 1861, he was an open defender of secession; he changed to a vigorous champion of the war, and thereafter was forever recklessly making proposals for peace and as recklessly withdrawing them—making war in spite of Mars, and negotiating in spite of Minerva.

For twenty years he has been an uncompromising advocate for a square fight with the proslavery party, and when that kind of a fight was forced upon the Republican, in 1860, he was here in Chicago, voting not for LINCOLN, nor for CHASE, but for old Edward BATES, of Missouri, one of the fossils of the slave party. He was then the associate and co-laborer of that other impracticable and unreliable squad—the BLAIR family. The country at this time wants no inspired harlequins in the national councils. Still less does it want men with statesmanship so unconscious that they can see nothing in public business but the mileage and per diem of their fellow-members. If Mr. GREELEY is not satisfied with his position as a journalist—a position which ought to be equal in point of influence, power and dignity to that of six average Senators—and if the Republicans of New-York want to do something for him, let them make him State Prison Inspector, or even Governor; anything that will not make the outside of the State responsible for his follies."

On his Own Chances.

When Mr. GREELEY was in the habit of speaking his mind, his utterances were of some public value. He often succeeded in putting a vast deal of truth into a small compass, and never had a greater success in this way than when he said in his Trumbull County, Ohio, speech, last Fall:

"If the Democratic Party were called upon to decide between Gen. GRANT and myself, I know that their regard for what they must call principle would induce nine-tenths of them to vote against me. Why? I am a decided enemy of that party, even in its most respectable aspects."

Congressman Lynch of Maine.

Hon. JOHN LYNCH, of the First District of Maine, has written a letter again declining to be a candidate for re-election to Congress. He says:

"In reply to numerous letters, urging me to allow my name to be presented to the Convention on the 26th inst., as a candidate for renomination; and to the suggestion which have from time to time appeared in the newspapers, that in case of a failure of the Convention to unite upon a York County man, I might again receive the nomination; permit me to say, that, while I fully appreciate the honor of the position, and am truly grateful for the many tokens of confidence and good-will which I have received from my constituents of all political parties during the time I have had the honor to serve as their Representative in Congress, my private affairs demanding my attention, I neither desire, nor could I, under any circumstances, accept a renomination."

Why Some Democrats Favor Greeley.

The Dover Delawarean, an old-style Democratic journal, has been giving the "plain English" of the meaning of Democratic support of GREELEY. It says:

"In plain English, certain members of Congress whose re-elections have been rendered doubtful by the redistricting of their States, suppose they may make politically by a fusion with Liberal Republicans, and thereby secure a re-election. They don't care about GREELEY, nor the success of the Democratic Party outside of their own district. They want to be returned to Congress, and are willing to do anything to secure that result. Others want to be Governors or Legislators, while an innumerable company desire any positions they can get, and hurrah for GREELEY because they imagine he may possibly be nominated at Baltimore, and they wish to be numbered among his early friends; of which he will be duly reminded if elected."

Ex-Attorney-General Hoar on Grant.

Commenting upon the strong speech made by Judge E. ROCKWOOD HOAR, at the Grant and Wilson ratification meeting in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Saturday evening last, the Worcester Spy says:

"Massachusetts people well know that Judge HOAR is too clear-sighted to be easily deceived, too upright and high-minded to hide corruption or incompetence in high places. He has no conceivable motive to mislead his fellow-citizens in this matter, and no one will believe that any motive would induce him to do so. Since he left the Cabinet some of those who call themselves "Liberal Republicans" have done their best to create the impression that he had been treated with indignity and forced to resign his office, hoping thus to alienate him from the President and secure his influence in support of their disorganizing plans. This attempt was a failure and never received the slightest countenance or encouragement from him. When such a man as this, a statesman and a practical man of affairs, so well qualified to form an opinion and so thoroughly trustworthy, says that Gen. GRANT is honest, patriotic and judicious, and deserves the confidence of the people, we may be quite sure that in re-electing him we run no serious risk."

The Liberal Republicans of Chicago.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean gives an insight into the character of the Liberal Republican delegation from that city to the Springfield Convention. It says: "The list numbers fifty-five, of which eighteen are defeated candidates for office, nine are ex-office-holders and six hold office at present. The delegation is literally an office-holders and office-hunters' brigade. Such a selection of men to attend a State Convention is unparalleled in the history of politics in Cook County. The eighteen have been defeated so often that further appeals to the Republican Party are useless; the retirement of the nine was forced upon them by the people, and the six would gratify their constituencies most by resigning. This is Liberalism in Chicago."

Another Democratic Journal Bolts.

The Detroit Free Press, the leading Democratic paper in Michigan, speaking of the nomination of GROESBECK and OLMSTED, says:

"Had this Conference occurredson the heels of the Cincinnati movement it would have been better for the Democratic Party. It would have seen that with GREELEY as the candidate there was not harmony among the Liberal Republicans, and the effort to make him a Democratic candidate would not have been made. It would have seen—what should be now, if it is not, plainly apparent—that GREELEY can neither unite the Republican nor the Democratic opposition to GRANT. Compare GROESBECK and OLMSTED with GREELEY and BROWN. Is it not plain that in the nomination of the former, political demagogues and tricksters did not have a hand? Do we not all know the nefarious means by which the nomination of the latter was secured at Cincinnati, and is attempted to be imposed upon our party? While any attempt to make nominations in advance of the conventions of the people, who alone have a right to make them, through regularly appointed delegates, is repudiated by us as undemocratic and wrong, yet we think that if the Baltimore Convention seek outside of the Democracy for advice it had much better resort to its friends than its enemies for candidates, particularly in the face of the fact that a conference of Revenue Reformers, representing the honest masses of Liberal Republicans, has, by its recommendations, declared that it does not seek to dictate to our great party, but will not support GREELEY and will support men who are sound on all the great questions of the day. Let the Baltimore Convention offer any men equally sound and honest, and it offers success as well as secures the support of the Reformers."

LOCAL POLITICS.

A Soldiers' and Sailors' Grant and Wilson Campaign Club was organized last evening in the Tenth Assembly District. Fifty-nine names were enrolled, and the following officers were elected: President, Constantine Nitsche; Vice-President, Gustav Treskatis, M. D.; Second Vice-President, Joseph Snyder; Secretary, Frank Rosslander; Delegates to Central Committee, E. M. Rosenbaum, F. R. Ludlam, James J. Keenan, Anthony Brackin, Adolph Reimann.

The Second Assembly District Grant and Wilson Campaign Club held a meeting last night at No. 132 Chatham-street and appointed a committee to arrange for a transparency to be placed across street.

The German Republican Organization of the Thirteenth Ward held a meeting at No. 167 Rivington-street, last night, indorsing the nomination of Gen. GRANT and Senator WILSON for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency.

The German Republican Association of the Fifteenth Assembly District held their regular monthly meeting at Newman's Hall, Ninth-avenue, endorsed the nominations made at Philadelphia, and pledged the Association to support them at the polls.

The Association then adjourned subject to the call of the President.

A German Grant and Wilson Campaign Club for the Fifteenth District was then formed, and the following officers were elected: President, JOHN J. POLLOCK; Vice-Presidents, John J. Steitz, Ambrosius Thoenebe; Secretaries, Albert Felder, Theodore Lemké; Treasurer, Jacob Schumck. A committee was also appointed to prepare a manifesto and platform to, be published in the Oestliche Post, and 5,000 copies printed in pamphlet form for distribution.

A Grant and Wilson Campaign Club for the town of East Chester, Westchester County, has been organized, with the following officers, viz.: Ex-Judge WM. H. VAN COTT, President; J. H. Porter, Secretary; A. E. Smith, Treasurer.

POLITICAL NOTES.

One Tennessee county has nineteen candidates for tax collector.

Mr. HERMANN RASTER, of Chicago, says he would not accept a nomination for Congress.

The Liberal Republicans of Vermont are going to hold a Convention to nominate candidates for State officers.

It is now said that Gen. FARNSWORTH, of Illinois, has secured enough delegates to gain for him a nomination for re-election to Congress.

A Republican club was organized in Indianapolis, Ind., Saturday night. A Grant and Wilson flag was raised, and speeches were made by Senator MORTON and Gen. COBURN.

Hon. W. H. CLAGETT, who has represented Montana in Congress during the past session of Congress, declines a re-election, and proposes to resume the practice of law.

A Delaware Democratic paper admits that the nomination of GREELEY at Baltimore "will be a heavy blow to the prospects of carrying Delaware for the Democratic ticket."

The Mobile Register is laboring very hard to reconcile the Press reports of the statements of Col. JOHN FORSYTH, its editor, at the Fifth-avenue Conference, with the sentiments he is known there to entertain.

W. F. ANDERSON, of Nevada, declines the honor of alternate delegate to the Baltimore Convention, and says that the use of his name was expressly forbidden before the meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee.

The Republicans of Palmyra have held an enthusiastic Grant and Wilson meeting. A club was formed, with Mr. D. B. SHAPLEY as President, and a full list of officers; and apt addresses were made by Hon. E. M. MORSE and Hon. EDWIN HICKS, of Canandaigua.

The Republican Committee for Marshall County, West Virginia, has published an address calling upon the State Committee to reassemble the Grafton Convention for the nomination of a Republican State ticket, and if the Committee fail to do this, inviting the Republicans of the State to meet in Convention without such call.

The Albany Journal says that two unsuccessful attempts have been made to get up a Greeley Convention in Rensselaer County. On the 5th it was postponed to the 20th, and then the same individual, and no other, appeared as on the 5th. He didn't deem it worth while to issue another call.

The Liberal editors are going down to Baltimore on the 9th of July to give their aid in securing the indorsement of GREELEY, and, as the Baltimore American expresses it, to gush over the honor supposed to be paid the profession in the nomination of one of its members for the Presidency.

Pennsylvania papers authoritatively contradict the ridiculous assertion of a Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press to the effect that Major ERRETT, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, had intimated as his belief that HARTRANFT and ALLEN could not be elected, and that Gen. GRANT was the real drag on the party in the State.

ROME AND GERMANY.

Address of the Pope to a German Literary Club—Persecution of the Catholics in Germany—A Prayer for the Overthrow of the Colossus.

ROME, June 25.—The Pope today received the members of the German Literary Club of this city, and in the course of his remarks upon the occasion, made use of the following language: "The persecution of Catholics has commenced in Germany, but they display courage under affliction, and have notified the German Government that the persecution of the Church is folly. The Church, "said the Holy Father," remains triumphant. We have asked Prince BISMARCK how it is that the once contented German Bishops have, according to the expressed belief of the German Government, been suddenly transformed into dangerous conspirators. No reply has yet been received. Let us pray to our Father in Heaven that the stone may fall that will complete the overthrow of the Colossus."

FRANCE.

M. Larcy, the Late Minister, Takes the Lead of the Right.

PARIS, June 25.—M. LARCY, the late Minister of Public Works, has been chosen President of the Party of the Right in the National Assembly.

TRIAL OF JUDGE McCUNN

Examination of John Boese, Clerk of the Superior Court.

A Suit Instituted at Midnight in McCunn's House—An Effort to Revive the Plea of the Overruled Demurrer—Interesting Testimony in the Binginger Matter.

ALBANY, June 26.—The Senate reassembled at 4 P. M.

Mr. D. P. WOOD moved to add an Assistant Postmaster to the officers of the Senate, to act as Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms and to aid in procuring the attendance of witnesses. Agreed to.

Mr. THOMAS BOESE, Clerk of the Superior Court of New-York, who was examined by counsel for the prosecution before the Senate took a recess, resumed the stand for cross-examination by the counsel for the respondent, and he was so examined by Judge SELDEN. He testified as follows:

Some of the papers referred to in the list I brought were not on file when I searched; they had been on file, but I could not find them; they had been lost or mixed with others, perhaps; it frequently happens that one Judge will relieve another for a short time, and in such case the record will not show the changes, but when an order is made the record will show who made the order; it also sometimes happens that one Judge will tell a party to take his matter before another Judge, who is more familiar with it; orders are often granted by a Judge holding a trial term; I have been a clerk in the Courts many years, and have practiced in them, and am conversant with their practice; the usual course is to file with the clerk all orders; the business of this character is very large; the number of cases on the calendar at trial terms is about two hundred; During a sitting a Judge will issue from a dozen to forty orders in a day.

Redirect to Mr. PARSONS—It is not usual for a Judge to issue an order in cases tried by another Judge.

The witness was then called upon to identify the papers, so that they could be put in the possession of the Clerk of the Senate, and he did so. He also identified other papers, which, since his examination last week, he had been requested to get. They were summonses and complaints and applications for injunctions issued by Judge McCUNN.

The witness said he had known counsel to go to the Judges' houses to get orders; that was done sometimes.

To Mr. PARSONS—That is seldom done; it is rare.

To Mr. SHERMAN—One reason why it is seldom done is that Judges do not want to be disturbed.

To Mr. PARSONS—The rule is that when an application is made it should be made to the Judge assigned to that special duty at the time, but sometimes that Judge could not be found; then application can be made to another Judge.

To Mr. DEVLIN—It was Judge BRADY who issued the order of injunction in the Board of Aldermen on the first of January last. There was no Court in session then and the order was issued out of Court.

TESTIMONY OF MELVILLE B. CLARK.

MELVILLE B. CLARK was called, sworn and examined by Mr. PARSONS:

I am the son of ABRAHAM B. CLARK. My father bought suit on the 4th November, 1869, for a dissolution of partnership with A. B. BININGER; at the time the stock, which was wines and liquors, was worth at least $100,000; The firm was dissolved on the 19th of November; there was a suit commenced by my father before Judge McCUNN, against BININGER, on the last hour of the 18th of November, which was midnight; this was at Judge MCCUNN's house: counsel and myself went there with papers, which were for the appointment of a receiver; the name of DANIEL HAURCHON was not mentioned; I did not know such a man; at twelve o'clock the papers were signed; witness identified the papers; the stock was alluded to as being very valuable, but I do not recollect any sums stated; I received the papers appointing HAURCHON receiver before ten A. M. the next day; I went to HAURCHON'S office and handed them to him; we then went to the store, and HAURCHON took possession of the store; HAURCHON was a lawyer, in partnership with MORGAN; I believe HAURCHON was a brother-in-law of Judge MCCUNN. Witness was handed a receiver's bond, and said he never saw it before, to his knowledge; did not recognize the signature of JAMES MORGAN to it.

Mr. PARSONS then offered as evidence the complaint in the case and the receiver's bond.

Mr. SELDEN objected to the introduction of the papers on the ground that they had reference to to acts before Judge McCUNN came into office the last time.

Mr. PARSONS supposed that objection was overruled when the Senate denied the demurrer.

The President put the question to the Senate, whether the objection should be sustained, and the Senate overruled the objection, and the papers were admitted.

Counsel for the prosecution then had read a portion of the complaint, which showed the stock to be valued at $500,000, which, together with other papers, he offered in evidence.

Mr. DEVLIN said it was the desire of respondent's counsel that all these papers should be put in, in order to show that Judge McCUNN had good cause for issuing his orders.

Mr. PARSONS inquired if counsel wanted duplicates put in.

Mr. DEVLIN answered no, but it was essential to have the affidavits put in.

Mr. PARSONS said they were included.

WITNESS (to PARSONS)—After the commencement of the suit, I met Judge McCUNN at my father's house two or three times; he was then in reference to the suit. I remember a suit brought by my father against BININGER before Judge FITHIAN; five or six days after this, Judge McCUNN first came to my father's house; Judge McCUNN advised the employment of a clerk, who was a good lawyer, and also a law partner of Judge FITHIAN; Judge McCUNN came to our house at 11 P. M., by invitation, to consult as to what was to be done in settling the matter between BININGER and my father, the payment of creditors and the existing suits by a surrender of their joint property; I think there were no suits pending, except the one concerning the partnership and receivership; Judge McCUNN said: "Mr. CLARK, if you sign that paper you sign your death-warrant; I will draw up a paper for you to sign;" he made some memoranda and said he would draw up the proper paper; the paper drawn up which Judge MCCUNN referred to was drawn up by Mr. TITUS, Mr. BININGER'S lawyer; that paper proposed that both should give up all their firm property to satisfy their creditors. The witness' recollection did not appear to be clear concerning these settlement papers. He was positive, however, that his father was satisfied with a paper drawn up by Mr. TITUS for BININGER for a settlement, but Judge MCCUNN proposed another basis. The witness said that Judge MCCUNN was invited to his father's house because he had shown an interest in the welfare of his father in this matter. He had said he would see my father righted in the matter, and that his property was protected; he often talked in this way; for this reason he was invited to our house, and in that way it was that he was there frequently; Judge MCCUNN proposed that his father should employ Mr. COMPTON, a lawyer; that he (Judge MCCUNN) would order an allowance to COMPTON of $10,000 out of the assets of the concern, with the understanding that $5,000 should go to my father; at one time Judge MCCUNN advised the employment of Judge VANDERPOEL, of the firm of BROWN, HALL & VANDERPOEL; I think this was because he had influence with the Sheriff; the Judge MCCUNN, in speaking of HAURCHON, said he was one of his boys, and he wanted to see him do well; since then Judge MCCUNN had said that HAURCHON was a scoundrel.

Cross-examined by Mr. DEVLIN—Judge MCCUNN in saying that HAURCHON was a scoundrel, also said if he had known it he would not have appointed him; COMPTON was established HAURCHON as receiver; he said he had known him in California and knew him to be a good man; witness had no recollection as to when or where, or of whom he got the papers appointing a receiver; he got them, however.

To Senator WOOD—I had the papers in my possession when I left my house.

To Senator BENEDICT—That was about 9 o'clock A. M.

To Mr. DEVLIN—I met only HAURCHON at his office, when I handed the papers; there was much bitterness between BININGER and my father; they are cousins and had been partners for thirty years; my father attending to the business and BININGER being abroad; the dissolution arose upon a notice served by BININGER on my father; the notice had been served two years prior to the dissolution; in the meantime BININGER was attending to the business, and our families were intimate until 1869, when the intimacy ceased. Witness was shown several papers executed on the night of the appointment of a receiver, but he could not recognize them.

The Senate then took a recess till 8 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

On reassembling the pay of witnesses was fixed at ten cents per mile traveling fees and three dollars per day.

The cross-examination of CLARK, by Mr. DEVLIN was resumed. His testimony was as follows: Judge MCCUNN advised my father to employ Judge VANDERPOEL as counsel, on account of his having influence with the Sheriff; did not know that Judge VANDERPOEL was counsel for the Sheriff, and that Judge MCCUNN's object was that the Sheriff should be poked as to his rights in the case, as he had possession of a portion of the property, and the United States authorities had another portion, under action of the Court of Bankruptcy. Judge MCCUNN told me he would order an allowance of $10,000 to COMPTON with the understanding that $5,000 should go to my father; don't know any reason for the Judge proposing to do this, except kindness to my father; don't remember what COMPTON said when I told him of this proposition made by Judge MCCUNN.

Senator MADDEN rose to say that to him this cross-examination appeared trivial and irrelevant.

Mr. DEVLIN replied that if the Senator would exchange places with him, and promise to do full justice to his client he would be very much obliged to him. If not, he would be obliged to proceed as he best knew how.

Senator MADDEN thought a great deal of time was wasted, to which he thought it was his duty to object.

Mr. DEVLIN asked the witness but a few more questions, and then Mr. PARSONS asked some questions concerning the proposition for settlement, to which he was unable to reply.

Witness said since the recess was taken he had come to the conclusion that this paper was the one drawn up by TITUS, and which was agreed to by all parties before Judge MCCUNN made his proposition.

In answer to Mr. DEVLIN the witness said he had had a conversation with TITUS on the subject since the recess.

TESTIMONY OF JOEL O. STEVENS.

JOEL O. STEVENS was next called. He testified:

I am the Under Sheriff; have heard of the suit of CLARK vs. BININGER; I saw Judge MCCUNN at the Sheriff's office at about that time; he was there concerning an order in the case. The witness was shown a paper, which, he said, was a copy of an order he refused to execute and counsel proposed to put it in as evidence. The counsel for the respondent objected, and the objection was overruled by the Senate. The order was read, which was, in effect, an order of the Sheriff to take possession of the property and hold it against the action of the United States authorities, who were also about to take possession.

OTHER WITNESSES.

MANSFIELD COMPTON testified to the midnight issuing of an injunction and appointment of a receiver, Nov. 18, 1869, and added: Immediately on the incoming of the 19th, presented my papers, and asked for the appointment of HANRAHAN as receiver; am not certain whether the receiver was appointed that night.

Mr. STICKNEY asked the witness what conversation he had with HANRAHAN prior to the application to Judge MCCUNN to appoint a receiver. Objected to by respondent's counsel, and the objection overruled by the Senate. The witness stated that he went to HANRAHAN's office, and being an old acquaintance of his, told him he had a case for a receiver to be appointed. HANRAHAN told him to apply to the Superior Court, and Judge MCCUNN would appoint him (HANRAHAN); did not know that MCCUNN had a desk in the office of HANRAHAN & MORGAN. Witness was shown the order issued by Judge FITHIAN, laying an injunction on the action of HANRAHAN as receiver, and recognized it. This was put in evidence. Counsel produced a letter written by HANRAHAN to witness, informing him that Judge MCCUNN had modified Judge FITHIAN'S order, and requested witness to meet MCCUNN at his (HANRAHAN'S) office; witness identified it and respondent's counsel objected to its being introduced as evidence, but the objection was overruled by the Senate; witness said Judge MCCUNN had said he would make an order for an allowance to him, but never said anything about protecting his client, CLARK. HANRAHAN promised me half of his commission also, if he was appointed, and I thought Judge FITHIAN would not appoint him if I went to him, so I was anxious to have HANRAHAN appointed.

(The order of Judge FITHIAN, sustaining the order of Judge MCCUNN appointing a receiver, was submitted to witness, identified and put in as evidence.)

In the matter of the collision between the State and Federal Courts, witness saw it was decided finally that the proceedings instituted in the State Courts had precedence; no allowance was ever granted to me by Judge MCCUNN; under the Code I would be entitled to $10,000, and I may have said to young CLARK that if I got it I would divide with his father, but I have no recollection of it.

The Senate then adjourned till 9 A. M. to-morrow.

THE BARNARD IMPEACHMENT.

Designation of Counsel to Prosecute by the Board of Managers.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 25.—The managers chosen by the Assembly to conduct the case against Judge BARNARD held a meeting at the Delevan House, in this city, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, for the purpose of designating counsel. Messrs. JOHN E. PARSONS and CHAS. O'CONOR, of your City, were appointed. The latter gentleman has not signified his acceptance, and the Board took a recess until this morning, by which time a reply will doubtless be received. It is understood that Mr. PARSONS has signified his willingness to accept the honor. The selection of this gentleman as one of the counsel was warmly urged by Judge VAN COTT.

Ten P. M.—The impeachment managers met again this evening, but no business was transacted. Mr. O'CONOR will not give an answer until to-morrow. JOHN E. PARSONS has been engaged as one of counsel.

THE RING THIEVES.

Another Stay of Proceedings—The Hand of Justice Again Arrested.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 25.—In the case of the People of the State of New-York against RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, Mr. COURTNEY made a motion for a stay of proceedings until the hearing and decision of the General Term, of the appeal from the order of Judge HOGEBOOM. The motion was granted.

Mr. W. H. PECKHAM represented the people. On the application of Mr. WILLARD BARTLETT, the same order was made in the case of WILLIAM M. TWEED.

OHIO.

The Democratic State Convention—Probable Course of the Friends of the Tammany Candidate.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 25.—There is every indication that the State Democratic Convention, to be held here on Thursday next, will be a very large one. Many delegates are already here, and more are expected to-night. The delegates here are almost unanimous for the ratification of the Cincinnati nominations. It is believed that a State ticket will be nominated at this Convention, but the nomination of an electoral ticket will be postponed until after the Baltimore Convention. The Liberal Republican State Central Committee held a meeting here today for consultation. Many prominent Liberals of the State were present. No business was done, but it is thought an effort will be made by them to have the nomination of a State ticket by the Democratic Convention postponed until after the National Democratic Convention.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Democratic Nominations for Congress in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Democratic Conventions made the following nominations this morning: For the First Congressional District, SAMUEL J. RANDALL, by acclamation; for the Third District, HERMAN VOGELBACH. No nomination was made in the Second District. The Convention in the First Senatorial District renominated Col. ROBERT P. DECHERT.

NEW-JERSEY.

The Democratic State Convention To-day—Supposed Temper of the Delegates.

TRENTON, N. J., June 25.—The Democratic State Convention to appoint eighteen delegates to the Democratic National Convention to be held in Baltimore on the 9th day of July, will be held to-morrow. Delegates are coming in rapidly from all parts of the State. The Convention will be fully represented, and will, no doubt, be an exciting one. The leaders are divided as to the propriety of instructing the delegates. Some are in favor of GREELEY, others are for JOEL PARKER, while others still are in favor of sending the delegates to Baltimore uninstructed.

A FRESHET.

The Tioga River, Pennsylvania, Overflows its Banks—Great Destruction—Railroad Bridges Swept Away—People Leaving Their Houses in Boats.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 25.—The rains of the last two days have produced a heavy flood in the Tioga River, in Tioga County, Pennsylvania. DUNHAM'S boom has broken away, and 3,000,000 feet of logs have been swept off. These logs were all the property of FOX, WESTON & BRONSON, of Painted Post, N. Y. The Lawrenceville and Wellsboro Railroad is washed away in several places, and all travel stopped. The Blossburg road, at Mitchell's, is under the water. The whole country is inundated in the vicinity of Mitchell's, the water being over fence-tops, washing out grain-fields, and compelling the people to move out of their houses in boats.

WILLIAMSPORT, Penn., June 25.—Part of the Linden Bridge, on the Pennsylvania and Erie Railroad seven miles west of this place, was carried away by the flood this evening. This is the bridge that was burned a few weeks ago, and was not yet entirely rebuilt.

The Adams Express Company and the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad.

BOSTON, June 25.—The following is the Supreme Judicial Court decision in the case of the Adams Express Company vs. The Trustees of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad Company: In April, 1869, the Adams Express Company made an agreement with the officers of the above-named corporation, by which they loaned them $200,000, and in return the Railroad corporation were to give the Express Company exclusive express facilities until the debt was paid. When the receivers took possession of the road they refused to carry out said agreement, and the Express Company gave a bond holding themselves liable for the earnings in case the decision of the Court should be against them. When the trustees appointed under the BUNDELL mortgages took possession they also refused to execute the contract, and similar stipulations took place. Now the decision has been given and it is adverse to the Express Company, the Court holding that the receivers and trustees were not obliged to carry out the said contract and order that the Adams Express Company account for the earnings subsequent to Oct. 20, 1870.

HALLOWAY has been relieved from the Lancaster and placed on waiting orders.

THE ALLEGED CANADIAN INSULT TO OUR FLAG.

The allegation contained in a Washington dispatch to a New-York morning paper, yesterday, concerning Secretary FISH in connection with the recently reported Canadian insult to our flag, excites much comment here. It is stated in the dispatch that "Secretary FISH, when his attention was called to it, remarked: 'It amounts to

HEALTH OF THE CITY.

Present Condition of the Crowded Neighborhoods.

Pools of Stagnant Water Found—Garbage Accumulations—Badly-Paved Streets—Necessity for Prompt Action by the Health Board.

The suspicion that this Summer will prove dangerous in its character is fast becoming a certainty. Every day developes the fact that we are to swelter under excessive heats, which will be relieved by violent bursts of rain. It is hardly necessary to reiterate what has been urged before in the columns of the TIMES, that such weather, partaking of a tropical character, gives to all diseases a tropical malignancy. And while it intensifies those maladies which are chronic with civilized beings, it not only developes others, but it also, by relaxing the system, deprives the sufferers of their usual strength of resistance. In short this Summer will be of a character to increase malignant types of illness to a maximum, and to diminish human vitality to the minimum. Under these circumstances, it becomes the bounden duty of all those who are invested with municipal authority to exert their powers in every possible way, and to shield the citizens as far as human efforts will avail from the dangers of contagious and epidemic scourges. At the present moment this is not done. A show of vigilance and activity has suddenly been developed in the Street-Cleaning Department by the transfer from the late contractor, Mr. BROWN, but it is to be feared that this sudden virtue is but superficial. There are undoubtedly streets which have been greatly improved, but these are in localities which have been pointed out by the TIMES as too scandalous for human endurance. Those streets which have not been noticed have not been cleaned, a circumstance which augurs badly for the thoroughness of the street-cleaning reforms. In proof of this, we may take South Fifth-avenue and Church-street, which, on a former occasion, were animadverted on as they deserved. An effort is being made in the former to get rid of the accumulated and pulverized filth. This has been opened up with a plow, and removed. This is, however, only partial, and is confined to the blocks in the vicinity of Washington-square just in fact in that locality where the attempt at improvement might be seen of all men. Lower down the street matters are in the same old condition of abominable corruption. There is no guttering, and therefore there can be no drainage; there is no paving, and therefore the street-cleaners cannot operate. But the dead dogs that have been thrown beside the pile of bricks in the centre of the street might have been removed, and the accumulation of filth at the Canal-street end might be carted away as is being done at the other extremity, it having always been in a worse condition than the Washington-square part. It is fortunate that there are not many tenement-houses in this locality, that is to say, tenements of the six-story order of architecture, where families are packed together like herrings in a barrel. For in wet weather, after great heats, this continuation of our proudest thoroughfare becomes a quagmire of the most pestilential character.

CHURCH-STREET.

Church-street is in the horrible First Ward. The improvement here is of a strictly private character. Some individuals have suddenly discovered, through the agency of the TIMES, that the place does smell, and have strewn chloride of lime along their gutters. But what avails this when, at the junction of Tinpot-alley and Church-street, there is a pool of stagnant water more than a foot deep, extending across the whole width of the alley, and some five feet broad. The express wagons of the Adams Company come dashing through this pool of death as if they were fording a creek; and when the noisome waters are stirred, there comes up such a stench as words cannot describe, but which makes the bystander flee, holding his nose vehemently, and striving to keep down the rebellion of his stomach. From this lake there trickles down, on the east side of Church-street, a thread of noisome water, which converts the unpaved street on that side into a black, pestilential quagmire. This sticks closely to the east side until opposite Edgar-street, where it crosses over to the west side, and an infinitesimal amount of the poisonous water escapes down the gutter of this street. This is too narrow for a thoroughfare; but it needs paving, guttering and sidewalks badly. The amount of garbage thrown into the street at the lower end of Church, between Tinpot-alley and Morris, is sickening. There are heaps of unimaginable substances covered with thousands of buzzing dung-flies. Almost opposite to Edgar-street is a dead dog, which seems to have been there for several days, for the flies were very busy about it, and it was already beginning to give forth an abominable odor. Just in this vicinity are some tenement-houses of considerable size, which are in pretty good condition, and, indeed, do not seem to have been built for tenement-houses. One looks like a warehouse, and another has all the appearance of a fine old mansion, and, indeed, in many respects, is more imposing than the up-town brown-stone fronts, all height and no width. The reporter of the TIMES took the liberty of inspecting some of these tenements. The water-closets were below in the basement, and in very fair condition. There was no smell, and they were kept clean.

SHAMEFUL NEGLECT.

Thames-street, between Church and Greenwich, is greatly in want of paving and guttering. There are stagnant pools of water where the cobble-stones have been forced out by heavy wheels, and in these holes substances get lodged and putrefy. It may be accepted as an axiom that the cobble-stone paving is utterly unfit for any street that has any traffic whatsoever. Now, Thames-street has no traffic of its own, but it is a short cut to the river, and is frequently taken by heavily-loaded wagons. For this reason it ought to be paved with trap-blocks, like those streets that are considered of importance. In Thames-street there are many tenement-houses, and a fresh one is being built on the north side of the block between Church and Greenwich; as usual the gutter has suffered during the process, and it is hard to find that there is any on that side at all, in consequence of which there is an accumulation of garbage at that point. The interiors of the tenement-houses here are not inviting, and the water-closets are built at the back, with an unpleasant economy of space, as there are no yards. The connection between these and the sewers is not perfect, and the flushing so necessary to health is impossible until there is a vast deposit of fecal matter, when the water of the sewer is enabled to carry some of it away. This is very strikingly shown at the sailors' boarding-house corner of Thames-street and Greenwich, where the vault of the water-closet is built out into the little yard, and is so badly constructed that the horrible matter oozes down the walls through all the bricks and coatings of plaster. The sewer does not serve its purpose, and the unhappy inhabitants are reduced to the last extremity of misery at night time. If they open their windows they are driven crazy by the stench; if they close them they are stifled by the heat. The children cry throughout the night, and are sometimes driven to sleep all over the house, in passages and on stairways, and in the bar-room—anywhere away from the bad smell. When to such misery inside is added a street badly paved, badly guttered, with pools of stagnant water everywhere, and heaps of garbage and filth that are allowed to remain for three and four days at a time, it may be conceived that the condition of the poor in the First Ward is not a happy one. It is even worse in Washington-street, where, from Morris street to the Battery, the gutters present the hideous uniform mass of garbage, sometimes partially dry, sometimes partially floating in stagnant water that is actually green. The smells of this wretched quarter are so overpowering that even the inhabitants realize the fact, and when the reporter passed along, stopped him eagerly, believing him to be an emissary from the Board of Health, and complained that the street-cleaners had not been there since Friday afternoon. It is true that the habits of these people are filthy; it is true that the street is no sooner cleaned than garbage is thrown into it from all the houses along the line; but what are the wretched people to do? They live under circumstances which prevent them from being as decent as civilization requires. Some of the tenement-houses have no sinks; some of them have sinks that are stopped up by stupid boys, who think it fine fun to thrust sticks down the holes. Even the best of them have no receptacle for the garbage which must come from the domestic life of so many families. The bones from the meat, the paring from the potatoes, the peeling of the onions, the rotten substances which have been rejected have no local habitation if not the street. When these houses were first built there were gardens behind them, with dust and garbage bins. A man came round and emptied those every morning. When the gardens went there was left a small yard, and the decencies of life were still preserved. Eager for money, the proprietors discovered that they could build tenement-houses upon the ground, and then the yards were absorbed. The bins disappeared, and nothing was left to the inhabitants by which they could satisfy the cleanly instincts of their nature, if they had any. It is possible some had; it is certain that many have not now, and that the latter regard garbage with a friendly eye. But no matter what may be urged against the habit of any of them, it is certain that until some accommodation is given them the street will be the great garbage receiver. It is useless to establish garbage-boxes, for they could not be kept without an additional force of Police. The inhabitants would steal them for kindling-wood. Nothing remains, then, but for the authorities to see that every house is furnished with a receptacle for garbage which can be visited and emptied daily.

A TENEMENT-HOUSE SCENE.

In Carlisle-street the guttering and the paving is wretched. There are also many tenement-houses. The reporter entered one and penetrated to the back yard. A young, pretty woman was seated on the stone steps that lead down to the water-closets. She was nursing her baby, and talking to it in that pretty wordless language which fond mothers invent. Underneath her nose was a hole full of filthy stagnant liquid which looked too thick for water. It leaked from the wall of the next tenement's back yard, and in all probability came from the water-closets. The individual in charge of the tenement-house conceived the bright idea of pulling up the flagstones in front of the cellarage and making a hole in the lowest part so as to receive this leakage. He had evidently mastered the axiom that water will always find the lowest level, and be acted on it. The woman said that in the mornings this man bailed out the water with a tin pan and emptied it down the sink. It smelled badly, she added with simplicity. She was right, it did smell badly; it smelt of disease and death, and of funereal odors, and of a plot in some dungeon among the dead for the pretty lady she was gathering to her bosom. For between the ignorance of the poor and the neglect of the authorities, children in this accursed First Ward die by the hundreds. "They make no effort to live, but just go off like the snuff of a candle," say the old women of the Ward. And truly they are in the right of it, for the place they leave is a good place to emigrate from.

MARKETFIELD-STREET.

Marketfield-street, on the western side of the First Ward, has not improved since the canceling of the late Mr. BROWN'S contract. The pavement here is Nicolson, and the drainage is all that can be desired. But the street has not been swept for a week apparently, and is full of decaying garbage. Still, the benefit of the better paving is manifest in its freedom from stagnant water. Rector-street, on the eastern side, is also paved with Nicolson blocks, and is really clean contrasting strangely with the scenes of filth around it. Because two streets are convenient may be rendered upon cobble-stone paving, and it is hoped that the Department of Public Works will see the point. Garbage exposed to the rays of the sun is bad, no doubt, but it is ten times worse when united to stagnant water. This is the crying evil of almost all the bad localities, and that would be completely remedied by Nicolson paving. If the inhabitants of the streets that suffer so dismally from the cobble-stone botching knew their best interests, they would compel their pet politicians to work in the good cause of health and decency, and obtain for them and their families a pavement the inhabitants of the avenues and the fashionable cross streets.

THE FOURTH WARD.

In the Fourth Ward the worst streets are Cherry and Water. The latter has the worst reputation, in consequence of the dens with which it abounds and the efforts which have been made by philanthropic people to change the place and convert the sinners. Commerce is doing the first. There are large bonded warehouses in this street now, and it is fast becoming a street of manufactories, in which ironworkers will be predominant. There are besides wholesale merchants' houses here, and in consequence there are many heavy trucks. It is needless to say that the authorities have not learned this fact and have not replaced the cobble-stones by trap-blocks, which are the only paving that will bear constant and great weight. The consequence is that the paving is in a bad condition, and is guttering to imperfect. There is considerable stagnant water in places, and some garbage, but not so much as might have been expected. Above James-slip no reproach can be brought against Water-street. Cherry-street is thoroughly out of repair, both as to paving and guttering. The street is full of garbage, and the interior of intolerable. Of the many tenement-houses here, one in particular, known as Cottam-court, the building covering the lots of Nos 36 and 38 Cherry-street. It has a front of 50 feet, which includes the passageways on each side, and a depth of 175 feet. Lots are let at the present moment 168 feet deep, and it can contain more than 100 in addition. The building is rectangular, and though by no means new, is better adapted for the purpose than any seen by the reporter. The system of water-closets is as perfect as can be desired, and they are kept beautifully clean, the flooring, seats, &c., being thoroughly scrubbed daily. The arrangements for flushing them and passing the exuviæ into the great sewers are so perfect that there are no bad smells. The agent in charge is an intelligent man, who has contrived to establish a sentiment of pride among the lodgers in Cottam-court, and the consequence is that the place is in most excellent condition and contrasts most advantageously with the street. Roosevelt was freshly paved last Fall with cobble-stones, and the natural consequence was that heavily-laden wagons going to the ferry took it. But cobble-stones will not stand travel, and the consequence is that the street is already completely out of repair, and the guttering is in the worst possible condition. This is especially the case in the block between Water and Cherry streets, where the gutters are filled with stagnant water on the south side. There is some drainage to James, but not very much considering, and as this street has many stores, some of them of a good standing and respectable character, this evil could be remedied if the street were properly guttered and paved. But when a street is neglected—when the water begins to collect in pools, and the better class of inhabitants begin to grumble—then the more ignorant take heart of grace, and chuck out their garbage with a free hand. The time must come sooner or later when the wisdom of the Department of Public Works will discover that a street must be paved, not according to the wealth of its inhabitants, but according to the traffic it bears and the drainage it needs. The public convenience at the present moment imperatively demands trap-blocks for Roosevelt-street, with decent guttering. James, Pell and Baxter streets were being cleaned as the reporter passed through them. These are all in want of better guttering, but the garbage is faithfully removed, and they are fairly swept.

THE SIXTH WARD.

In the Sixth Ward Baxter-street has been repaved and is considerably improved. Cobble-stones have been used, and as there is very little traffic here their use is more defensible than elsewhere. The future will prove how lasting such a pavement can be under the most favorable circumstances. Baxter-street is full of tenement-houses, which, in many cases, are double, having other tenement-houses in rear. The water-closets are sometimes in the inner court-yard, and sometimes in the basement. As a general rule they are in a bad condition, and more or less leaky. When the reporter asked if bad smells came from them, a woman shrugged her shoulders, and said, with piteous resignation, "We are poor people," as if the fact of their being poor made it a necessity for them to dwell among evil odors. At the corner of Baxter and Bayard, the culverts are blocked with indescribable filth; and feculent water, instead of escaping, is pouring across the street, filling the air with a most pestilential odor. Hundreds of dung-flies hover about the culverts, and settle on the hideous masses that block the water's flow. If there ever was a hiding-place where miasms lurked with a grin, bidding his time to catch some poor child by the golden hair, here they are. Worth-street is being graded. One might imagine that it was far away in the north of the island. Not at all. One of our oldest streets, with palatial structures at the Broadway end, only the Bowery end was forgotten by the Department of Public Works. The authorities have remembered it under the spurring of the TIMES, and it is possible that it will be redeemed.

And it is to be hoped that they will not forget other districts that have been pointed out. The influences of such surroundings upon the young are incalculably evil. They stunt the moral nature, they starve æstheticism, they make the man a drunken drudge and the woman a slattern and a vixen. It needs must that there should be poor as there must be rich, but it needs not that the poor should be surrounded with filth, that the odors of the charnel-house and of all pollution should mingle in the air where with their lives, should wreathe in mist about their pillows, should poison their food, should take the enjoyment out of their leisure, should drag their children into untimely graves, and should make them pariahs among their kind. This is a horrible wrong, which if permitted much longer will react upon the world with a violence proportioned to its intensity. Those who have assumed the management of affairs have made a contract with these men, with their wives and their children, that they should have all the opportunities of advancement and the advantages of civilization which are combined in our American institutions. They have lied to them most bitterly, and have permitted them to sink into a state of existence not only miserable in itself, but disgraceful to New-York as a City.

VICE-PRESIDENT COLFAX.

Full Report of His Speech to His Townsmen and Friends at South Bend—Hearty Indorsement of the Philadelphian Ticket.

The South Bend (Ind.) Tribune furnishes us a full report of the speech delivered by Vice-President COLFAX to his townsmen on the evening of June 18, when they assembled to welcome him home. We reproduce it below, as it contains very much to interest readers throughout the country, not furnished by the telegraphic report already published in those columns.

Mr. COLFAX said:

MY NEIGHBORS AND FRIENDS: I scarcely know how to speak to you, with the full and overflowing heart which I have tonight, to thank you for this renewed evidence of the regard in which you have held me for so many years, and to tender gratitude for a lifetime of unwavering confidence and affectionate esteem. When I started from Washington for this beautiful city, that I love to think of as my home, I was telegraphed that the good people here desired to welcome me, on my arrival at the depot in your city, with a reception. I answered, that under present circumstances, I was very much preferred to come to my home quietly, and to retire to that private life which stretches before me now; but, found on my arrival, that in spite of that protest, you had determined to convince me that here I had, not only a home in your midst, but, far better, a home in your hearts. It is easy to greet the rising sun, but it requires more disinterested attachment to pay the same respect and the same regards to the setting sun, politically. All of you have read the proceedings of the Convention in an Eastern State a few days ago, and you are aware that another than myself was selected as the Republican candidate for Vice-President of the United States. With the action of that Convention I have no fault to find. Ups and downs are the fate of all in political life—"A breath unmakes them, as a breath has made." After a good many "ups" in my life, it was fitting that I, too, should have my "down;" but I feel more for those who nobly supported me, and for friends here, than for myself.

Many of you know, right well, that with this term I desired that my public life should close, with every ambitious hope fully gratified, and looked forward to years of rest and quiet, in the beautiful Valley of the St. Joseph. Until last Fall, I fully intended that that determination should be final. When, however, it was represented to me by very many prominent and influential Republicans at Washington that it was selfish and wrong on my part to determine when my public life should end—that after the honors I had received, it was not fitting that I should decline to retire from public affairs and public duties in the present condition of political affairs, and when it was insisted that to do so would be evidence of ingratitude, I felt that I could not oppose their wishes, and though I would not electioneer for myself, nor against any other candidate, yet if the party deemed it best for me to be a candidate for re-election, I had not the right to say no.

This was what duty to political principles, and to the millions of Republicans who had supported me in 1868, required. When the National Convention assembled they had it, therefore, in their own hands to decide what they should do with me. No one now, therefore, can reproach me for lack of duty to that political organization with whose canvasses and whose triumphs I have for so many years been associated. I can tell you distinctly that I was not nominated at Philadelphia. It was simply for the reason that a majority of that Convention thought that the ticket would be stronger by the nomination of a distinguished son of New England. I told many of the delegates afterward that "I knew how it was myself now," and that fully appreciating the saying, "No," I should bear the defeat philosophically, and give my support to the ticket nominated there.

I have too often stood before you in our Court-house-square, and told you that men were nothing, and that principles were everything, to fail to do so in this contribution when a nation's convention applied the test to myself. With me the cause towers above everything else; men are dwarfed into nothing when principles are concerned. I am to-day a true, sincere and devoted Republican—as much as when you have so often chosen me the standard-bearer of your cause. It was the NATIONAL CONVENTION of Philadelphia—repeated it to the delegates of our State—and, therefore, without a shadow of regret—without a word of complaint, can go back to that private life from which the people of this Congressional district chose me so many years ago, and show that my devotion to principle was not at all affected by considerations of public offices and public honors.

And now, my friends, one word in regard to that past public life; I have been thinking of it this evening in the quiet of my library, while listening to the music—the beautiful music—of your bands, playing in many a hearty musical reception; and I can now say to you that, looking back on this public life, from its commencement to its close, though you might have selected abler men to represent your interests, I can conscientiously say that in the twenty-two years spent in this service, if I were to die and be gathered to my fathers to-night, there is not a single line of my record that dying I would wish to blot—not one! not one! It has always been, and is today, a source of pride that, when I have returned from the discharge of public duties, and again came in your midst, I could do so without any reproach of having broken one solitary pledge made to the people when I asked them for their suffrages. Twenty-seven years ago I commenced the publication of a newspaper in this city with which my name was for a long time associated. Twenty-two years ago the people elected me a delegate to the Convention to amend the original Indiana State Constitution under which we now live. It was before there was any anti-slavery agitation in this country, and when it was proposed, in that Convention, that you should have in that Constitution an article providing that no colored person should ever step on the soil of this free State of Indiana, I, for one, though then young in years, rose and branded it with the condemnation it deserved. I said then that such a provision in the Constitution of a free State was a dishonor to it; that such a provision in the Constitution of a civilized State was a disgrace to it; and in behalf of the people of this country I denounced it, and continued to denounce it, and, although it received 8,000 majority in this district, and 99,000 majority in this State, yet I felt assured that in the advancing march of civilization in this country and in this State, there would come a time when no man in the broad confines of Indiana would not blush to acknowledge any such constitutional provision. I denounced the proposition then, and rejoiced that it has since been trampled upon by the judicial tribunals of our State as a scandal and a disgrace.

There is no one principle that has ever animated and strengthened me, as I have traveled over and over again through this broad country, and spoken twelve hundred times in half the States of the Union. One principle has ever been paramount in every speech I have made to you, and that has been to elevate the downtrodden, to uplift the oppressed, to enfranchise the enslaved, and to make our country and institutions greater and grander by recognizing the equality of the humblest of all persons within its confines. From that principle, as I have so often here, in the midst of arduous and exciting contests, felt the magnetism of your supporting aid ever standing by me, ever protecting me, ever guarding my name against any attack, any suspicion, and inspiring me by your love. I had a position in thousands of hearts in this republic of which any man could feel proud. And, my friends, it is a happy thought that for all the years I have been before you, you have honored me by steadily increasing majorities, here where you have for over thirty years known my daily life, my principles, my shortcomings. Let me now join you in congratulation of the final triumph of the principles I have so often vindicated and maintained before you. I believe that today there stands no party from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Lakes of the north to the Gulf of the sunny South, from one end to the other end of the continent; there is no voice lifted against the principles which I have always enunciated and have always defended. It seems to me that perhaps there could be no more fitting time when I should be transferred from the active to the retired list, when, relieved from all responsibility, I could share with you in the joys and blessings which republican institutions have conferred upon this country, and which seem now so secure.

And now, my friends, I scarcely know what else to say, except that I thank you for this manifestation of your regard for me. I have spoken to you in this general way, and I could add for the many parties politically opposed to me who honor this meeting by their attendance, that however we may have differed in contests in the past, I have always realized a feeling of gratitude, and of good will, for those good, among those most strongly opposed to me in the town and county in which I have lived. I rejoice in this, for I believe there has been no election in our county, except the one in which a distinguished citizen of our town, whom I always honored and respected, the late NORMAN EDDY, was a candidate—with that exception—gentlemen, scholar, statesman, and popular with all as he was—I believe there has been no election when scores of Democrats have not honored me with their support in this county. It was an evidence of kind regard; it was an evidence of unity of interest in our county and prosperous city, of which I am so proud, and to you all, I tender my sincere thanks.

When the decision was made at Philadelphia, I sent instantly my adhesion to the national ticket presented by the Convention to the people of the United States, and I hope when the Ides of October come I may be able to rejoice with you over the election of that war-tried soldier and citizen, Gov. BROWNE, with Lieut-Gov. SEXTON, and all the Republican ticket down to TOM. TUTT, the real estate appraiser, whom I see before me, and I only regret that I have not more real estate for him to appraise. I have no regrets—no complaints—no ill-feeling toward anybody; for I believe that National Conventions have a right to choose whom they please as their standard-bearers, and at the close of this Vice-Presidential term I can rejoice that no division in the party can be charged to me. When I was first chosen to that position I determined that there never should be any strife or ill-will between the two highest officers of the Government, such as had too often been the case in our Government—that I would not intertere in the patronage of the President—that if mistakes, inseparable from public life, were made, my name should never be used to reproach or condemn him. All of you can bear witness, no matter what papers you may have read—whether Republican or Democratic—my name has never been used as one who was in any way encouraging opposition to the President of the United States. Whenever I thought it expedient to counsel with him or with our leading officials at Washington, I did it in a private way. And when, last Spring, there came the appeal from the State of Indiana—an appeal that seemed hard to resist—when you unanimously, in your Republican Convention, urged me to allow my name to be used as a candidate for the Presidential office, I saw that it could not be thus used without engend-ring more strife, discord and ill-will than would result from any other division in the Republican Party. Therefore I turned my back upon it, as I had previously done on other appeals of like character, so that there should never be any strife or division or dissension between Gen. GRANT and myself, and that in no way could my name be used in antagonism to him. I have always believed in strengthening our political organization by unity, harmony, and conciliation, and hence there was no temptation of office, no matter how exalted it might be, that could induce me to consent to allow my name to be used to array different sections of the party against the other. Now, my friends, thanking you for this renewed confidence that I have yet a place in your hearts, and without ill-feeling toward any one, I can say, truthfully, that after eighteen years, in which I have not always what it was to enjoy a Northern Indiana Winter, I feel gratified and rejoiced to come back to you, and to be received with open hands and with warm hearts, as often, for so many years in the past, realizing that friends of my boyhood days had educated their children and grand-children into the same regard for me which for over thirty years, they have themselves entertained. I thank you with my heart and soul, for this beautiful and kindly testimony which you have given so spontaneously to night—for the welcome you have extended—showing, as it does, that I shall always be welcome to you and yours in the years to come as in the days gone by. And now, neighbors and friends, one and all, good-night!

The Claim of Mark M. Pomeroy—Opinion of Judge Barrett—A Partial Mandamus Granted.

An application was made a few days ago on behalf of MARK M. POMEROY in the Supreme Court Chambers, before Judge BARRETT, for a mandamus to compel the Board of Audit to audit and allow his claim for corporation advertising. Yesterday Judge BARRETT decided the application and rendered a long opinion, in which he recites the various statutes bearing upon the matter:

The following is the opinion in full:

BARRETT, J.—The question presented for the consideration of the Court is, whether the relator has any legal claim against the City and County of New-York which it is the duty of the Board of Audit to investigate and settle. The solution of this question depends upon the construction given to the second section of chapter 375 of the Laws of 1872. The Controller is thereby required "to allow and pay the bills of the several proprietors of the newspapers in said City and County for all City and County advertising actually done prior to Jan. 1, 1872."

It is claimed that the effect of the bonds to alliciate to legalize all previous illegal demands, and to require the payment of the bills of mere volunteers the same as of those publishing under legal authority. It would require the most direct and unmistakable language, language susceptible of no other or fairer meaning to justify the Court in imputing a legislative intention to perpetrate such wrong upon our people. There is nothing in the act contradictory and irreconcilable. The objection so far as the newspapers are concerned, evidently was to provide an appropriate procedure, with an adequate fund for the speedy liquidation and payment of all strictly legal publications, and also of all just and honest claims of an equitable, if not of a technically legal character. There is the fullest intention of providing for publishers who had acted under legal authority, or in good faith and under color of such authority, but none of presenting any part of the public funds to those who had acted in palpable violation of law, and without a shadow of authority. There are other provisions in the act favoring this construction, such as the distinct reference to the authority of the Board of Canvassers in connection with the publication of the official canvass, and also the direction not to "audit or allow any claim at a greater rate or amount than that fixed by law, or by a contract under which any services were rendered or materials furnished."

So, too, as to the mode of procedure. The bills are to be read aloud at the time of presentation, entered by the clerk of the Board in a suitable book or journal and laid on the table for five days thereafter for objections.

All objections" made within the five days are to be duly considered by the Board. The words "all objections" are surely broad enough to cover the major as well as the minor, the legality as well as extent of the claim. It is also urged that the general laws of the State in force at the time of the passage of the act afforded adequate remedies for the enforcement of all legal claims, and that therefore the provisions in question are supererogatory under any other than the extreme construction contended for. This view, however, overlooks the fact that even for those whose claims are of undoubted validity a special fund is provided with a procedure which contemplates payment within thirty days from the passage of the act. It also overlooks the equitable spirit which pervades the act and which authorizes the Board to consider the claims of those who, with but doubtful legal right, are yet entitled, having acted in good faith, under color of legal authority, to equitable consideration. Take, for instance, the provision respecting the publication of the official canvasses. Here all publications actually made under the authority of the Board of Canvassers are legalized and payment required.

Whether the Board of Canvassers directed such publications without any legal authority, or having a limited authority exceeded their powers, with respect to the number of the newspapers or the extent of such publications, the innocent proprietor who published bona fide relying on such authority is protected. It will thus be seen that the act in question was a necessary and just supplement to existing laws, and that the construction which the Court puts upon it is in harmony with its purpose and spirit. It remains but to apply these views to the case of the relator.

A large part of the publications for which he claims viz.: those specified in sections C, D, E, and F, annexed to his affidavit, were made apparently without any contract, express or implied, and without any legal authority or even official request. The allowance of such claims would be pure gratuity, and the Court will not, by mandamus, a writ which only issues in cases of unquestionable legal right, direct the Board of Audit to consider them. A part of the relators' services, however, (viz., those specified in schedules A and B was done in 1870, after the passage of chapter 383 of the laws of that year and solely under the authority of the designation of the Commercial Advertiser. If the work had been done after the designation of the nine daily and nine weekly newspapers under the act of 1871, it would have been plainly illegal, and the Court could not have treated it as within even the broad language and equitable spirit of the act of 1872. But it was all done in 1870 without any notice, express or implied, of the revocation of the original appointment, and it will be well for the relator's failure to designate afresh the absence of any revocation, or other notice of the necessity which existed for some corporation advertising, that the proprietors of the four daily and three weekly newspapers which had been designated under the Act of 1868, thus deemed their appointments to have been continued under the act of 1870. At all events, that part of the work was beneficial and necessary so long as the power remained unexecuted, and was done under color of legal authority, and if the above views are correct, it comes within the provisions of the act of 1872, and is thereby directed to be audited, allowed and paid.

A mandamus must therefore issue, requiring the Board to audit the claims embraced in the said schedules A and B. It will then be for the Board to investigate the details, and satisfy itself that the advertisements were actually inserted and published as charged, and to audit such items as in this view of their legality may be found to be just, but at no greater rate or amount than fixed by law, or by a contract under which they were rendered. And if there be no express contract then the Board should audit upon the basis of the quantum meruit, viz.: of an implied contract to pay what the services are reasonably worth. This is a matter within the discretion of the Board, and the mandamus will only require the principle upon which it should act, without interfering with the fullest exercise of this discretion. In all other respects the motion is denied. Let the order be settled upon one day's notice.

Dutch Heinrich's Partner.

JACOB ALBRECHT, the notorious bank thief, and well known in this City as one of "Dutch Heinrich's" comrades, and an account of whose singular escape from the Prussian State Prison at Moabit was given several weeks ago in the TIMES, was recaptured recently by the Prussian detectives in the small town of Wittenberge, Province of Brandenburg, where he had been concealed for nearly a week in the cottage of a peasant. When the detectives burst into the room where he was hidden, he drew a revolver and fired several shots at them, but without effect. He was speedily overpowered and taken in irons to Berlin. In his possession were found several hundred dollars in gold, a passport to the United States, and a large quantity of clothes. He obstinately refused to give any information as to how he had escaped from the Moabit Prison, or who had aided him in his daring flight. Even a diet of bread and water and several other disciplinary penalties failed to elicit anything from him. The criminal Court of Berlin added four years to the four years' imprisonment for which he had originally been sentenced for robbing the Royal Discount Company; and he was then taken back to Moabit. During the first six months of his confinement here ALBRECHT will be chained to the wall.

The Wall-street markets were generally dull through the early business of the day, but after 1 o'clock the Stock Exchange manifested signs of firmness, and subsequently of decided animation on three or four leading speculative Stocks. The sales of Gold through the day were almost uniform at 113⅞ ₱ cent., as at the close of business on Monday, and the rate of Exchange on London was 109½, with exceptions at 109⅝ ₱ cent. The advance of yesterday was fairly supported, but the transactions were not sufficiently important to renew active shipments of Gold. The Treasury will begin the payment of the July interest (in Gold) on the Public Debt to-morrow, so that if Gold should be required for export, it will not affect the supply in the open market. The Public Funds were steady at yesterday's figures, without much business being done. There was also little done in Southern State Bonds, or in Railway Mortgages. In the Share market the most spirited rise was in Pacific Mail and Erie Stocks. The general market left off firm, as follows, compared with Monday night.

THE BROOKLYN FIFTY.

The Board of Education—A Large Increase in the Yearly Estimates.

The Subcommittee of the Brooklyn Committee of Fifty have issued the following report:

CHAMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE OF FIFTY,
No. 367 FULTON-STREET,
BROOKLYN, June 24, 1872.

To the Executive Committee of the Committee of Fifty of the City of Brooklyn:

Your Subcommittee appointed to investigate the affairs of the Board of Education have respectfully to report:

The schedule of expenditures for the support of the schools during the year 1872, as recently submitted to the "Board of Estimate," asks for $781,000 (see their report) appropriation from the city, in addition to the State fund, which this year is estimated at $205,000, and in addition to the $90,000 authorized by the Legislature for building purposes and the last year's balance of $88,447. Making a total of $1,114,653 for the fiscal year 1873; being about $427,000 more than was the total expenditure of last year.

Of this $1,114,653, the Commissioners of Education propose expending $229,000, (see their estimate,) and the $90,000 above stated, making $319,000 for schoolhouse purposes during the ensuing year. That this formidable sum of $1,114,653 is not necessary may be inferred from the following exposition: During the five preceding years, there has been expended for the purchase of sites, and building and enlarging schoolhouses, $986,710, (see their report for 1872, page 70, and

Mr. Congressman ROOSEVELT, who has a keen sense of humor, has made the following discovery:

"There are three prominent matters of dispute at present affecting the country; the first is the great question of corruption in office, the second is centralization of power in opposition to the independence of the States, and the third is the demand of the colored people for negro supremacy under special laws placing the whites at a disadvantage with them. Upon these essential doctrines HORACE GREELEY is a Democrat."

The value of this opinion, like that of the opinions originated by the lamented Jack Bunsby, lies in the "application on it." The fact that Mr. GREELEY is a "Democrat" on the "great question of corruption in office," gives him the active support of the Tammany thieves, but it disgusts the older and better class of Democrats. The fact that GREELEY is a Democrat on the question of the "independence" of the States, makes him attractive to BEAUREGARD and JEFF. DAVIS, but it repels Southern men who know that the only hope of the South lies in burying her State rights chimera out of sight. As to Mr. GREELEY'S position on "negro supremacy," we do not know on which side to class a man who avows himself in favor of mixed schools, but thinks there is no longer any harm in the Kuklux.

In another article, some facts have been referred to the Cincinnati Commercial, which finds it difficult to believe that the GREELEY organization in this City is being run by some most disreputable characters. To which add this: JNO. U. ANDREWS, a "Vir ginian," is published by the Tribune as making speeches for GREELEY in the Tenth Assembly district of this County. On the 13th of July, 1863, JNO. U. ANDREWS was engaged in haranguing the mob, which had just torn down a Provost Marshal's office, and inciting them to further violence. For this offense, he was arraigned, in the following May, and condemned to imprisonment. Can the Commercial account for ANDREWS' reappearance as a public orator, and his devotion to GREELEY? Does it suppose it is the philosopher's zeal for reform, or the firmness of his character, and the impossibility of subjecting him to the control of bad men, that attracts this class of followers? We have a very distinct theory on the subject. It is that men like ANDREWS believe their personal and political ends will be served by Mr. GREELEY'S election. But we should be glad to hear the opinion of the Commercial.

The failure of the Boston Peace Jubilee teaches one lesson which we may well ponder, and that is that a big thing is not always good and strong, or even successful in proportion to its bigness. The average citizen has been accused of measuring greatness altogether by material size, and we fear that there is some reason for the accusation. For him to say that such or such a thing was "the biggest on this Continent," was to express eulogy in its highest conceivable form. The discipline of reverses took some of that nonsense out of him during the war, and now here is another little lesson of the same sort, which he will surely listen to, because it is accompanied by a forfeiture in the form of dollars and cents. It is not comforting to us, whatever the journals of the "Hub" may think, to reflect that some of our Boston friends will have a deficiency of $250,000 to make up anent this dismal failure. But if that loss, multiplied by a hundred, could be distributed over the country, it might be profitably paid, if the failure it atoned for and emphasized should teach us all the weakness of that material vastness we are apt to overrate, and the value of that discipline, thoroughness, and finish we are so inclined to undervalue.

It would seem that nagging and a devotion to so-called Liberal Reform go together. There is no end to the complaints of these Reform newspapers that Gen. GRANT and his overworked Cabinet officers, when their present duties are performed, seek relief in relaxation; and it is even said that after working faithfully and cheerfully through the session with Congress as a body, they have fled the face of the individual Congressman seeking an interview. The Tribune yesterday reproduced some snarling of this kind from a disreputable source. It is nearly Midsummer, and the season is ten days' earlier and ten degrees hotter in Washington than it is here; yet because the President and some members of the Cabinet have gone to the sea-side, or to their own rural homes, they are held up to the public as neglectful of their duties, and spoken of as if they were truant schoolboys. The same thing has been commonly done in this country heretofore, and is done by hard-worked officials all the world over. Our President and his advisers can communicate and be communicated with by telegraph, and the President himself can be in Washington, if he is needed there, in six hours. But what of that? Shall an opportunity for a nagging fling be lost? Such faultfinding is of the pettiest kind. It has one value, however—it shows to what straits Gen. GRANT'S opponents are reduced when they wish to charge him with misconduct.

The support of Mr. GREELEY by the Democrats looks to the future, not to the past. The Rochester Union, one of the bitterest of Democratic journals, and a supporter of GREELEY, having been twitted with the fact that its candidate "is no Democrat, and never was," frankly replies: "True; but he may yet be." It has long been evident that, if Mr. GREELEY were elected, he would be completely in the hands of the Democrats. His Democratic friends now count on more than this—on his becoming one of them. How do his Republican advocates like the prospect?

We furnish, in another column, some more links in the chain of evidence connecting Gov. HOFFMAN, when occupying the position of Mayor of New-York, with the perpetration of frauds upon the City Treasury. We have already shown that the vouchers submitted to Mayor HOFFMAN, along with the orders upon the County Treasurer to which his signature was required, contained items of a character so clearly fraudulent that it was impossible to misunderstand their character. To those who pretend that HOFFMAN might have overlooked the fact of ordinary cane-seat chairs being charged at nine dollars each, and of gun-cases being charged at from fifty to a hundred times more than their actual value, we now commend the further fact that HOFFMAN authorized the payment of accounts which were not certified as the law requires, and in which the absence of the necessary affidavit was presumptive evidence of gross and intentional fraud.

Tammany's New Alliance.

The Cincinnati Commercial admits that if Mr. GREELEY'S connection with the Tammany Democrats is proved, it will ruin his chances of election. It says: "Convict HORACE GREELEY of bargaining with Democrats, as to the distribution of offices, and his candidacy is practically at an end, for his unfitness to be President would be proven, and the people would certainly prefer GRANT."

The question here is as to the amount and kind of evidence which is necessary to procure "conviction." The Cincinnati Commercial is well aware that negotiations of the kind referred to are not conducted in such a way as to render discovery easy. Senator FENTON, for instance—who enjoys more of Mr. GREELEY'S confidence than any other public man—does not advertise in the papers, or send a wagon with a bell round the streets, when he is about to enter upon some new piece of trickery. He uses an Indian's skill in covering up his tracks—working largely through agents, and never putting his name to paper when he can help it. So with Mr. GREELEY—he is not so foolish as to sign a contract which could be produced against him. His friends—COCHRANE, MUDGETT, PALMER, and persons of that stamp—do much of the work for him. The proof is chiefly inferential; but in this case the proof is so strong that no jury could hesitate to find a verdict upon it. If the facts, patent to all the world, do not show that Mr. GREELEY and the Tammany Democrats are acting in strict harmony with each other, they must admit of some other interpretation—and we should be glad to learn from the Cincinnati Commercial what that interpretation is.

For example, nearly all the Democrats in this City who support GREELEY are or have been notoriously connected with the Tammany Ring. Why is this? Is it because the old leaders of the Ring are anxious for political Reform? Or is it not rather because they are plotting to regain their ascendency in this City and State, and see no way of doing it except by promising to support GREELEY for President provided he and his party connive at their local plots? Which of these two motives is likely to prevail with them most?

SWEENY is working actively for GREELEY, and has certainly held consultations with some of GREELEY'S friends. Sheriff BRENNAN is enlisting his "Clubs" on the same side. Gov. HOFFMAN has a good understanding with GREELEY'S managers. Even so respectable a man as Congressman ROOSEVELT accepted a Tammany nomination only two years ago, was elected by Tammany influence and Tammany money, and is now franking heaps of "Greeley documents" (including tradesmen's circulars) in pursuance of the same line. Look round this City, and you will find all the old Tammany machinery in motion for GREELEY. These are undeniable facts—you can only say you do not see them by carefully shutting your eyes. Then what does it all mean? Are these men using GREELEY, or is he using them, or are we to believe that SWEENY & Co. have given up all thoughts of plunder, and are now intent upon pure government and reform?

Again, it is quite clear that all the Reform measures of the last Legislature were defeated by the instrumentality of GREELEY'S friends. When the public pressure became too strong, and a measure—like Mr. TILDEN'S Oyer and Terminer Bill—was forced through, Gov. HOFFMAN came to the rescue and vetoed it. Gov. HOFFMAN expects to get the renomination for Governor, and the Greeleyites and Fentonites will support him, provided he uses his influence in favor of GREELEY for President. We shall then see this City handed back to Tammany rule, and the public will be plundered worse than ever—for there will be a year's lost time to make up.

All this is done under the cry of "Reform"—a cry which had no attractions for Mr. GREELEY or the Tribune when we were engaged in a hard and protracted struggle for Reform between 1869 and 1871. It was only when a great success attended our efforts—a success which attracted universal attention—that the Fentonites saw that "Reform" was a good card to play. Every man among the better class of Democrats in this City knows what a false pretense it is to describe the GREELEY manœuvre as a "Reform campaign." They hold steadily aloof from it. We know nothing of the opinions of Mr. SAMUEL J. TILDEN and Ex-Mayor HAVEMEYER, for we have not the honor of holding any communication with them, directly or indirectly; but we will undertake to say that they are opposed to GREELEY, and look upon his alliance with the Tammany Democracy here as in the last degree unprincipled and contemptible.

The issue is not misunderstood in this City, whatever may be the case in Cincinnati. Here we see the Greeley men, and we all know how they stand in the community. There is not a corporal's guard of respectable men among them. Ask the Democratic merchants and bankers—they are all against GREELEY. On the other hand, the Tammany wire-pullers and roughs, the scalawags in search of place, the rascals who have recently been turned out of office, are all in his favor. If the editor of the Cincinnati Commercial questions these facts, we ask nothing better than that he shall come here and make inquiries for himself. Three days in this City will satisfy him on the subject. A vote for GREELEY next Fall will be a vote for the restoration of Tammany rule—and there is no branch of business which would not be involved in immeasurable disasters in consequence. Newspapers cannot deceive the public one way or the other on this subject. The people observe facts for themselves, and draw their own conclusions—and it is because they do this that we are confident New-York State will give a larger majority for the Republican Party next Fall than she has done for many a year past. The people have beaten Tammany organizations once, and they can and will do it again.

Nurseries of Pestilence.

The new brooms of the Street-cleaning Department do not sweep so clean as might be desired. In another column will be found the record of some of their sins of omission, which cannot be too quickly remedied. Beyond the control, however, of the most perfectly conducted system of street-cleaning, remain the internal deposits of the filth of the tenement-houses. The picture given elsewhere, of the horrible condition of many of the abodes of the poor in this City, is a simple record of facts, whose accuracy any one can test without much trouble. It is, moreover, a picture which covers but a very limited area of the tenement-house region, and whose fac similes can be found at frequent intervals, over at least one-half of the extent of Manhattan Island. It was from such miserable dens as are depicted by our reporter, that Tammany drew the solid basis of its strength. The Ring repaid its ignorant supporters by surrounding them with such conditions as make men forget the decencies of civilized life, and as tend to create a class with the seeds of pestilence in their blood, and the seeds of revolution in their heart. A Building Department that permitted the erection of houses with absolutely no provision for the most essential sanitary requirements, a Board of Health that winked at the grossest neglect of the laws it existed to enforce, and a Department of Public Works which misappropriated the money paid for street-paving, and left open traps for pestilence in every populous district of the City, combined to bring the death-rate of New-York up to its present alarming proportions, and to utterly debase the human instincts of thousands of the dwellers in our lower wards.

We cannot annul in a single season, the fatal legacy of criminal neglect and reckless plunder. But we can insist that duties which have been so basely neglected in the past should be rigorously discharged now. The rapacity of house proprietors and the corruption of City officials have done their worst to make New-York one of the most unhealthy cities of the world, and to instill into its tenement population a sullen hatred of the more fortunate classes of society. The public health and the public safety alike demand that the results of this sinister work should be thoroughly and promptly removed. Every one of the brutalizing and health-destroying influences detailed by our reporter are of a strictly preventable kind. Firmness and vigilance can do a great deal to dissipate the foul odors and the filthy accumulations that make many of the tenements of New-York mere fever-warrens. Let proprietors be simply compelled to make dwellings rented for human habitation in all respects fit for it. Let the Board of Health, which has hitherto done so little to deserve this title, see to it that the people who have forgotten the simplest requirements of cleanliness should be taught them again. First, see that soil-pipes no longer leak, that culverts are kept clear, and that household refuse can find some other place of deposit than the street, and then it will be less difficult to make the poor understand that a certain amount of cleanliness in their household arrangements is a duty which they owe to themselves and to the community amid which they live. It is a mere evasion to say that we have, so far escaped a serious visitation of pestilence. Our enormous death-rate shows that we are now suffering as severely as if we had an epidemic ravaging our population. There are at least 180 people who die every week in New-York whose lives would be spared were the City as well kept as Boston is. When we say that the death-rate of New-York is at present forty per cent. higher than that of Boston, it may not be to some people a very suggestive fact. But when we remind them that the difference costs us twice as many lives every week, as the small-pox in the worst of its recent phases has ever done, the alarming necessity for sanitary improvement becomes apparent to the dullest comprehension.

English Justices' Justice.

There exists a general impression in this country that English law bears severely on the English laborer. While this is a mistake, it is undoubtedly true that many English country Justices either know very little law, or are ready to twist the little they do know in a way to favor landlords and injure laborers. "Justices' justice" has passed into a proverb in England, and many laborers who have suffered from its stupidity or malevolence emigrate to this country, and smarting under the unjust treatment they have received, spread the impression that the English law, the fountain of our own common and statute law, discriminates against the poor and in favor of the rich.

One of the most astonishing specimens of the wrong which an English county Justice will dare do, is furnished in a letter recently contributed to the Pall Mall Gazette, by Canon GIRDLESTONE. This gentleman is a benevolent clergyman, who has made it a practice to assist laboring men to remove from counties where wages are low to others where higher rates are paid. Finding one JOHN WEBBER living in North Devon on eight shillings a week, he procured for him a situation in Lancashire at sixteen shillings a week, and gave him three pounds and over to pay his expenses in moving to his new residence. WEBBER gave up his cottage and sold his furniture, and was then arrested at the suit of the farmer who had formerly employed him, for breach of contract in leaving his service. After having been detained for a week, without any place of abode, he was brought to trial before two Magistrates, one of whom had granted the warrant for his arrest, while the other was the farmer who was the plaintiff in the suit. On the trial, WEBBER swore that he had been employed by the week, and proved, partly by the admission of the plaintiff-magistrate, that he had given his employer a month's warning, and that the latter had accepted the key of his cottage and had paid him his week's wages—though he had usually paid him by the fortnight—thus terminating the contract. On the other hand, the plaintiff swore that he had employed WEBBER by the year, and that the contract had been made in the presence of a woman—whom, however, he failed to call as a witness. Throughout the trial, the presiding Magistrate interrupted WEBBER'S advocate, and interfered in behalf of his brother Magistrate in the most unseemly manner. The result was that WEBBER, in spite of law and evidence, was found guilty, and fined two pounds and costs—making his aggregate loss by his unjust sentence fully five pounds. Not content with having thus shown his ignorance of law and decency, the presiding Magistrate turned to Canon GIRDLESTONE, who was present, and abused him violently for aiding laborers to obtain situations at improved rates of wages. The reverend gentleman protested against this indecency, and the Magistrate thereupon took the extraordinary course of putting the question, whether he should continue his lecture, to the vote of those present. The laborers, being in a majority, loudly voted "No," and the Magistrate, strange to say, yielded, and discontinued his abuse. It does not yet appear whether Canon GIRDLESTONE has thought fit to make any attempt to secure the dismissal of this Magistrate from the office he has abused. It is certainly to be hoped that he will do so, for there is no possibility that any English Government would sustain so ignorant a distorter of justice.

Such a case as this could hardly be paralleled in this country, outside of the Courts where CARDOZO and BARNARD formerly disgraced the Bench. It should, however, be remembered that the English law has no proper share in the condemnation which this disgraceful matter will call out. The lawless conduct of the Magistrate does not bring reproach upon the law. JOHN WEBBER suffered, not because the law discriminated against him, but because an ignorant and impudent country Justice openly disregarded the law.

National Guard Encampments.

The brigade drills which have recently taken place at Tompkins-square and Prospect Park, closed the drill season for our National Guardsmen, and with the exception of the usual parade on the Fourth of July, they have little military duties to look forward to until next Fall. Military excursions, however, are now frequent, and will continue to be for a month or more. While military excursions afford a pleasing diversion to National Guardsmen, they have a good effect in accustoming the men to act together in a soldierly capacity, and it the officers in command are efficient, may be made quite as valuable as less interesting drills.

When the National Rifle Association has commenced active operations, we may expect trials in markmanship to have more or less to do with military exercises; and companies and regiments will then be quite as eager to exhibit their proficiency at the target as they now are to show how accurately they can perform the evolutions of the company and the battalion. This is very proper, for ability to use his rifle should not be a secondary consideration with a soldier, nor should skill in marching and the manual of arms be placed ahead of accurate and rapid firing. But while field movements and target practice are two important parts of military duty, they do not comprise it all. The life of the professional soldier is passed in camp, and upon its correct ordering more than half his efficiency depends. It is in camp the soldier learns to take care of himself, so that, if cut off from the main body with which he has been serving, he can pitch his own tent, mend his own clothes and cook his own rations, improvising the materials for his repast when his commissary stores run low or are entirely exhausted. It is while in camp that the soldier learns to perform the duties of a sentinel, and all the varied phases of guard duty which make up so much of the life of soldiers, in peace as well as war; so that the National Guardsman who knows nothing about camp duty, is as little like a soldier as the child who struts about with a paper cocked-hat and a tin sword.

In this State there is no regular provision for encamping the National Guard, although a majority of our most experienced division and brigade commanders are in favor of it, for the better drilled regiments, at least, as often as every second year. In Massachusetts the military are ordered into camp every year by brigade for a week at a time; the officers and men, while thus employed, receiving regular pay from the State.

Since the war, the Twenty-second Regiment have held one or two encampments at Long Branch for target practice, but, with this exception, it is now many years since any State regiment has regularly gone into camp. The Seventh now proposes to break its long abstinence from this portion of soldierly duty, and go into camp next week at Saratoga. As the regiment has, ever since the days of Camp Cameron, been supplied with a full camp equipage, it can make this move with comparative small expense. Not a few of the officers who are now with the regiment held commissions when it went to Washington in 1861, and were also at Fort Federal, Baltimore, in 1863, so that they have had practical experience in camp duty, and will therefore have little difficulty in instructing the men in all the minutiæ of camp duty. From the orders which Col. CLARK has issued for the occasion, it is evident that while the members will have ample opportunity for enjoying themselves, they will also be compelled to comply with the usual rules governing camps, and will have an actual taste of the pleasures and discomforts of life in the tented field. As the encampment is within the limits of the State, the men are amenable to all the laws and regulations governing troops when called into active service, and can be tried by Court-martial for infringements of military discipline. This encampment of the Seventh, therefore, cannot but prove of value to that organization, and we trust that next year many of our other first-class regiments will also go into camp for a week or ten days.

Dirty Bait for Votes.

Some of our journals seem determined to have the Battle of the Boyne fought over again in our streets this year as it was last July, and naturally enough the Greeley organ has joined in this outrageous work. Compelled by the necessities of its new political alliance to conciliate the class opposed to the Orangemen, it cunningly comments upon the libel that the latter are arming for their proposed parade. Having improved Mr. GREELEY'S chances for getting the votes of the more powerful Irish faction by some rough abuse of the Orangemen for their determination to arm themselves, the Tribune next says that it does "not believe one word of the slanderous story." Where, then, was the need of repeating it, unless for the purpose we have indicated?

We have had nothing to say of this proposed parade, for the reason that nothing could be said without danger to the public peace. Nor was it necessary to say anything, as we now have a law regulating street processions, and plainly prescribing the duties of the Police in connection with them. The matter is under consideration by the Police Commissioners, we understand, and until they give some evidence of an intention to neglect their duty in the premises nothing is to be gained by a public discussion of the subject. Least of all should the peace of the City be disturbed by imputing to the Orangemen designs which, it is admitted, there is no reason whatever for supposing they entertain.

Corrupted by its new political affiliations, the Tribune has done many things to earn the contempt and distrust of reputable people; but when it introduces the rioter ANDREWS to public notice, and attempts to array the Irish clans in battle line in our streets in order to serve the ends of its new masters, it is going further than prudence will warrant. The people are not disposed to have another period of tumult and riot, even to secure the privilege of having Mr. GREELEY to rule over them. The Tribune will never be convinced of the fact until after the election, but the people really prefer peace and prosperity to Mr. GREELEY.

MINOR TOPICS.

An explosion of chemicals took place in Liberty-street on Friday night last, by which a number of firemen were severely and dangerously burned. The investigation into the cause of the accident discloses several interesting facts. The proprietor testified that he had large quantities of nitrous ether and of Hoffmann's anodyne, two highly inflamable and explosive substances, in his store, and that they were kept on the upper floor, immediately under the roof, where the heat of the sun would be most intense. In his opinion, the explosion was caused by the extreme heat of the weather. The City authorities forbid gunpowder and nitro-glycerine to be stored in this City, but here is a man who keeps substances much more likely to explode, in the most dangerous place in his entire establishment. What is to be done about it? Has the man violated any law? If so, let him be punished, but if not, then let us have a law against the storing of nitrous ether and Hoffman's anodyne within the City limits.

A few days since we suggested that the selection of the last days of June for yachting regattas was the best possible plan to secure a drifting instead of a sailing match. There was no wind in the bay on the day of the New-York Yacht Club's regatta, and the same lack of wind characterized the regatta of last Saturday, and the match for the Wallack Cup on Monday. If yachting, as understood by New-York yachtsmen, is a pastime, to be indulged in only when calm weather renders reefing and seasickness alike unnecessary, the last of June is an excellent time for following that spirited sport. If, however, the yachtsmen wish to prove the speed and weatherly qualities of their vessels, and to display their own seamanship, it would be as well to select a time for regattas when, at least, a moderately fresh breeze might be expected. In that case we should need, however, to build boats that, like the Dauntless, could stand the strain of racing in heavy weather, and not be rendered fit for the dry dock by beating twenty miles to windward in a fresh breeze.

Pike County, Pennsylvania, is a stronghold of the Democratic Party, and, in common with Berks County, is credited with the possession of that discreet and eminently conservative Democrat who still votes for ANDREW JACKSON. It has, says Mr. GREELEY,—or rather said Mr. GREELEY in his Republican days,—"five gallons of whisky to every spelling-book." Nevertheless, we now learn from the news columns of the Tribune that the Democrats of Pike County are one and all in favor of Mr. GREELEY as their candidate. Has Mr. GREELEY been secretly engaged in the whisky business, as he was in the tobacco business, and has his distillery supplied the five gallons of whisky which in Pike County coexist with one-fifth the number of spelling-books? Or have the Pike County Democrats recklessly drunk their entire stock of whisky, and under its influence been brought to cheer for "GREELEY and free whisky!" Which of these two explanations is the true solution of the problem? What induces Pike County to support GREELEY? Probably there is one other answer, and that is, that the Tribune is willfully mistaken when it credits Pike County with any such preposterous purpose.

Buffalo hunting is a very good thing in its way, but it surely can be best enjoyed where it is naturally sought, on the prairies. The plan which is proposed just now, of opening the fashionable season at Niagara by a "grand buffalo hunt," consequently strikes one as being of doubtful taste. It is represented that city people who spend the season at the Falls, wish to get a glimpse of the sports of the far West, and hence this scheme has been devised for their amusement. To have a buffalo hunt it is needful to have buffaloes. So the projectors sent out to Nebraska instructions to suitable persons there to catch and box up a number of the animals, and to send them on by the cars. At the same time, a band of real Pawnee Indians was to be forwarded, who should hunt down the beasts in proper style at the Falls. It seems that a despatch has now been received at Omaha to the effect that seven buffaloes had been captured south of North Platte to fill the order; but that, in taking them from Red Willow to North Platte, a distance of some fifty miles, six of the seven had died from exhaustion. The operation of being run down had proved too much for the poor creatures, and they were spared the fate of being slaughtered for the pleasure of jaded citizens at Niagara. It is a little too hard to inflict upon the buffaloes this double misery, and we hope the present experience may have the effect of inducing those who crave the excitement of hunting the animals, to seek it, in future, upon the plains.

At a regular meeting of the Police Commissioners of this City, held on the 30th of last month, on motion of Commissioner BARR it was "unanimously" resolved that Superintendent KELSO report, at his earliest convenience, the street and number of "each and every policy-shop, and exchange-office where policy is sold, and the head-quarters of the same." Persons reading the foregoing, who might not happen to be well informed about Tammany tactics, would be likely to suppose that there was going to be a clean sweep made of the "exchange-offices"—another name for "policy-shops"—but those who were led to expect a reform measure of such great magnitude from men like BEN MANIERRE and "Ancillary" BARR, can now see their mistake. In the first place, the immediate effect of the above resolution would be to put the villainous brood of policy-men upon their guard, so that they might have a chance to be far enough out of the way in case the force of public opinion should call for their arrest. The increased labors of Superintendent KELSO in breaking the Processions law, and making invidious distinctions in favor of Catholic Church bands, will, no doubt, be used as a reason why he should not have been able to make the report called for; but this flimsy excuse can be properly appreciated when it is taken into consideration that the Captains of the several precincts have constantly at their elbows a complete list of the places in question, and could furnish the total by telegraph to Police Head-quarters in less than five minutes. The truth is the resolution of Commissioner BARR was not intended to materially interfere with the "policy" men, and if—unfortunately for them—it should have such a result, there is good cause to believe that no one would be more surprised than the "ancillary" person who proposed it.

The two lads who got out of the Tombs on Sunday night bid fair to rival the fame of Jack Sheppard. Neither is seventeen years of age, we are told, and the nerve and address shown by both is quite surprising. They first tore their blankets into strips, and so made a long line; then managed in some way to get up to the window of their cell, squeezed through the bars, lowered themselves down to the roof of a shed which is even with the top of the adjacent wall, and dropped quietly into Elm-street. Both lads were stark naked, and both were seen by a passer-by, it being only a little after 12 o'clock. The witness gave the alarm at the Franklin-street gate of the prison; but, although instant pursuit was made, the runaways were not captured. Masters WILLIAM MIDDLETON and GEORGE DOWLING will probably do some brilliant mischief before they die, and in the meantime we should be glad to know why they were put in a cell through the window of which it was possible they should pass. It appears they did not displace the bars, but actually slipped between them; and from this it would appear that the sooner those bars are set closer together, the more likely they will be in future to fulfill the purpose for which they are designed.

Col. VANDERBILT ALLEN has recently retired from the military service of the Khedive of Egypt. He carries with him a very high mark of the value placed upon his services, in the shape of the decoration and diploma of Commander of the Order of the Mejidie. We believe that Col. ALLEN is the first American officer who has received such a mark of distinction, and the terms in which it was conveyed are understood to have been as flattering as the decoration itself. Col. ALLEN was a West Point graduate of the Class of 1864, and began his active military career on the staff of Gen. SHERIDAN. He is the son of Mr. D. B. ALLEN, and the grandson of Commodore VANDERBILT.

GEN. GRANT.

What He Is—His Great Qualities—His Genius—Pre-eminent Among all Generals—His Heroic Determination—Sureness of Judgment—&c., &c., &c.

Gen. GRANT'S history should teach us to discriminate better than we Americans are apt to do between glitter and solid work. Our proneness to run after demagogues and spouters may find a wholesome corrective in the study of such a character as his. The qualities by which great things are accomplished are here seen to have no necessary connection with showy and superficial accomplishments. When the mass of men look upon such a character they may learn a truer respect for themselves and each other: they are taught by it that high qualities and great abilities are consistent with the simplicity of taste, contempt for parade, and plainness of manners with which direct and earnest men have a strong natural sympathy. ULYSSES GRANT the tanner, ULYSSES GRANT the unsuccessful applicant for the post of City Surveyor of St. Louis, ULYSSES GRANT, the driver into that city of his two-horse team with a load of wood to sell, had within him every manly quality which will cause the name of Lieut.-Gen. GRANT to live forever in history. His career is a lesson in practical democracy; it is a quiet satire on the dandyism, the puppyism, and the shallow affectation of our fashionable exquisites as well as upon the swagger of our plausible, glib-tongued demagogues. Not by any means that great qualities are inconsistent with cultivated manners and a fluent elocution; but that such superficial accomplishments are no measure of worth or ability.

Gen. GRANT'S last brilliant campaign sets the final seal upon his reputation. It stamps him as the superior of his able antagonist as well as of all the commanders that have served with or under him in the great campaigns of the last year. It is not necessary to sacrifice any part of their well-earned reputations to his. SHERMAN and SHERIDAN deserve all that has ever been said in their praise; but there has never been a time, since GRANT was made Lieutenant-General, when anybody but SHERMAN, on our side, could have been classed with him. Since SHERMAN'S bold march through Georgia, and his capture of Savannah and Charleston, there have been many who, in their strong admiration of his great achievements, inclined to rank him as the greater General of the two. That judgment, we take it, is now reversed by the court of final appeal; not by dwarfing the reputation of SHERMAN, which suffers no just abatement, but by the expansion into grander proportions of that of GRANT.

GRANT stands pre-eminent among all the Generals who have served in this war in the completeness of his final results. He has owed nothing to accident; and, both in the West and the East, he has accomplished the most arduous things that were to be done. The great thing in the West, without which the rebel power could never have been broken in that vast region, was the reopening of the Mississippi; the great thing in the East, the taking of the rebel capital. Richmond was the right leg of the rebellion, and the Mississippi River its left. Both were contested by the rebels with a full appreciation of their value. The resistance was, in both cases, powerful and obstinate enough to put the most heroic tenacity of the most indomitable mind to a proof sufficient to test its quality. Gen. GRANT has exhibited the utmost strength of will of which the highest type of manhood is capable. The defenses of Vicksburg and the defenses of Richmond were both deemed impregnable, and were defended with a proportionable confidence and obstinacy; but they both yielded, at last, to GRANT'S matchless persistence and unequaled strategy. And, in both cases, he not only took the long-contested positions, but compelled the surrender of the whole force defending them. Nothing could be more clean and complete, even in imagination, than Gen. GRANT'S masterly execution. He did not merely, in each case, acquire a position which was the key of a wide theatre of operations; he did not merely beat or disable the opposing force; he left no fragment of it in existence except as prisoners of war subject to his disposal.

If anybody is so obtuse or so wrong-headed as to see nothing great in Gen. GRANT beyond his marvelous tenacity of will, let that doubter explain, if he can, how it has happened that, since GRANT rose to high command, this quality has always been exerted in conspicuous energy precisely at the point on which everything in his whole sphere of operations hinged. There has been no display of great qualities on small occasions; no expenditure of herculean effort to accomplish objects not of the first magnitude. It is only a very clear-sighted and a very comprehensive mind that could always thus have laid the whole emphasis of an indomitable soul so precisely on the emphatic place. How, if he be not a General of the first order of intellect, as well as of the most heroic determination, does it happen that in assigning great and brilliant parts to his subordinate commanders, he has never, when the results of his strategy were fully unfolded, appeared in the picture except as the central figure? However it may seem during the progress of one of his great combined campaigns, it always turns out at last, when it reaches that completeness and finish in which he contrives to have his campaigns end, that we see him standing in the foreground, and that the grouping is always such that the glory of the other Generals instead of eclipsing his own gives it additional lustre. It is this sureness of judgment which sees precisely where lies the turning point; which sees precisely what are the objects that justify the utmost stretch of persistence; it is this ability to take in the whole field of view in just perspective and due subordination of parts, that is the mark of a superior mind. Gen. GRANT has taken out of the hands of all critics the question whether it belongs to him. He has won his greatest triumph over the most skillful and accomplished General on the other side; over a General who foiled him long enough to prove his great mastery of the art of war; and the completeness of whose defeat is a testimony to GRANT'S genius such as a victory over any other General of the Confederacy, or even an earlier victory over LEE himself could not have given. Apply to Gen. GRANT what test you will; measure him by the magnitude of the obstacles he has surmounted, by the value of the positions he has gained, by the fame of the antagonist over whom he has triumphed, by the achievements of his most illustrious co-workers, by the sureness with which he directs his indomitable energy to the vital point which is the key of a vast field of operations, or by that supreme test of consummate ability, the absolute completeness of his results, and he vindicates his claim to stand next after NAPOLEON and WELLINGTON, among the great soldiers of this country, if not on a level with the latter.

[It may be thought that the above article is quoted from some "Grant organ;" but it is in reality copied from GRANT'S most persistent slanderer, the New-York World, of April 11, 1865. The truth would force itself out just then, for all mankind could see what this country owed to Gen. GRANT, and it would have been useless for the World to have denied the credit due to the great commander. What was true on April 11, 1865, cannot be untrue in June, 1872.]

HOFFMAN AND THE CITY FRAUDS.

It has already been shown in these columns that during 1867-68 the amounts expended for furniture, repairs and fittings in the armories and drill-rooms of the National Guard regiments of this City were as follows:

In 1867	$317,014 79
In 1868	512,167 41
Total	$829,182 20

This expenditure, be it noted, is altogether independent of the $3,221,865 paid out under similar pretences, and which formed the subject of the earlier disclosures of the Tammany frauds in 1869-70-71 made by the TIMES.

We have seen that relative to the expenditure of 1867, Gov. HOFFMAN made the following remarks, in a message to the Board of Supervisors, in January, 1868:

"The appropriations for armories last year were very large, and the expenditures were greatly in excess of the appropriations. Desirous as I have always been to strengthen and encourage the National Guard, as far as was just and proper, I felt constrained, nevertheless, on several occasions during the past year, to withhold my signature from bills presented and audited for supplies and repairs to armories, because I deemed them unnecessarily large."

Here was the knowledge distinctly avowed that the armory expenditures had begun to assume a very exorbitant character, and here did Mayor HOFFMAN explicitly declare that he held himself as jointly responsible for such abuse of public trust. We have already shown, by a few details, how much of a sham these professions were, when tested by HOFFMAN'S subsequent performances. With the detailed vouchers before him, he signed warrants for tens of thousands of public money, in payment of claims which the most superficial inspection must have convinced him were fraudulent. The gross amount of fraud perpetrated, from first to last, under these armory accounts, which HOFFMAN set the example to his successor of signing without question, it is impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy. We can get some idea of it, however, by the aid of the report of the Citizens' Investigating Committee on City Frauds.

This report states that after a careful examination of the various armories, by competent experts, the "total estimated amount of possible expenditures for additions, alterations, and repairs upon armories and drill-rooms used or leased by the City, including carpenter and cabinet work, mason work, painting and plumbing, gas-fittings, furniture, and other articles supplied from Jan. 1, 1869, to 16th September, 1871, was $202,463." Persons prominent and active in connection with this Committee, and who gave this inspection personal attention and supervision, state "that included in this $202,000 was everything in the armories embraced under the different heads they have given; that nothing of this character found was omitted, the Committee believing the payments for the same to have been embraced in the $3,221,865 62 expended for these purposes subsequent to Jan. 1, 1869. What was paid for painting, permanent or temporary repairs, changing of partitions, &c., during 1867 and 1868, the Committee had no means of judging. Whether such expenditure was more than four times the value of the interiors of all of the armories in 1871 is left to an intelligent public to decide.

Keeping in view these general facts, let us see whether, apart from the fraudulent character of their items, the vouchers under which HOFFMAN signed away public money were legally attested and properly made out. Confining our attention to the claims on account of armories and drill-rooms, we find that during the first half of 1868, HOFFMAN signed warrants to notorious Ring tradesmen, showing totals represented by the following summary:

Total to Ingersoll & Co., Ingersoll, Watson and Garvey, in six months	$268,106 09
Add paid to Geo. S. Miller	49,502 08
Add paid to Keyser & Co.	46,727 47
Add paid to miscellaneous	18,633 58

Signed by HOFFMAN for furniture, fittings and repairs, in 6 months in 1868 $382,969 22

Of the firm of INGERSOLL & Co. the Subcommittee on Armories and Drill-Rooms report as follows:

"Mr. INGERSOLL, also a receiver of large amounts, we have also been unable to meet; but we are informed by Mr. WATSON, of INGERSOLL, WATSON & Co., that he (INGERSOLL) was junior partner of that firm, and made their office his head-quarters, but that he (WATSON) knew nothing about his (INGERSOLL'S) connection with the City or County affairs."

The vouchers or bills upon which the following warrants (signed by HOFFMAN) were issued, are made out in the name of INGERSOLL & Co. and receipted by them, but on the back are indorsed INGERSOLL, WATSON & Co., and the warrants are issued in the name of INGERSOLL, WATSON & Co., and indorsed INGERSOLL, WATSON & Co., and in most cases also by INGERSOLL & Co. The indorsements are all in the same hand writing.

No. 535, for	7,855 62	No. 1,391, for	7,423 36
No. 536, for	683 50	No. 1,392, for	1,161,25
No. 537, for	6,777 17
Total	$45,163 40

The legal method of presenting claims against the City is described in the following general law:

LAWS 1847, CHAP. 420.

SEC. 2. No account shall be audited by any Board of Town Auditors or Supervisors, or Superintendents of the Poor, for any services or disbursements, unless such account shall be made out in items, and accompanied with an affidavit attached thereto, and to be filed with such account, made by the person presenting or claiming the same, that the items of such account are correct, and that the disbursements and services charged therein have been in fact made or rendered, or necesary to be made or rendered, at that session of the Board, and stating that no part thereof has been paid or satisfied. And the Chairman of such Board, or either of said Superintendents, is hereby authorized to administer any oath required under this section.

Of thirty-one vouchers examined, made out in the names of INGERSOLL, WATSON & Co., INGERSOLL & Co., GARVEY, and KEYSER & Co., covered by the foregoing summary, embracing payments to the amount of $328,000, but eight—amounting to about $33,000—seem to be regularly sworn to. These vouchers are all in the name of KEYSER & Co., and specify items in detail. In eight other cases—involving $42,000—there are no affidavits. In six of these cases the signature of the maker of the bill is attached to the blank affidavit without the signature of a notary, while in the remaining two cases the signature to the affidavit and the signature of the notary are both wanting. In fifteen vouchers—amounting to $253,000—the signature of the party purporting to make the oath is attached, and also the signature of E. A. WOODWARD as Notary Public, but the body of the affidavit printed on the voucher is not filled up.

What appears to be an informality is, in reality, not merely such, but is a delinquency of much greater magnitude. It is stated by one party to whom has been issued City and County warrants for a large amount during the last five years, that when preparing a bill, it was as much of a practice to attach his name to the blank affidavit as it was to write an item in the bill, but that in all cases in which WOODWARD'S name appears to such affidavit, as Notary Public, it was placed there after the bill was handed to him for adjustment, and without an oath ever having been, in fact, administered. This looseness, it is stated, has been practiced by others, whose names have been used as the medium for extracting large sums from the Treasury on claims of a fraudulent character. It appears, from all the evidence that can be gathered on this point, that whatever may have been the offenses of the persons whose names have been so conspicuously before the public as participants in or instruments of fraud they, as makers of bills, have not added the crime of perjuring themselves in swearing to the correctness of their bills. The manipulators of the Ring have been obliged to ignore the law prescribing the mode of verifying bills. The makers of the bills have often been induced to sign under assurance that the signature to the affidavit did not involve the commission of a crime when no oath was administered. The iron grip of these Ring-masters has generally failed to extort from their victims false oaths even while submitting to the falsification of their bills. No pressure could extort from these bill-makers crimes from which their masters never shrank when such crimes were demanded for the purposes of plunder.

To the blank form of all bills prescribed for use and furnished by the Controller, there is attached, printed on the same sheet directly under the bill, the affidavit; and directly under the affidavit the certificate of the public officer that the articles enumerated in the bill have been received, and the services performed, that they were necessary for and have been or will be properly applied, and that the prices are just and reasonable. Bills for the pay of armorers were required to be certified by the Colonel or officer in command of a regiment or body of militia occupying an armory. Bills for repairs, furniture, fittings, &c., required the certificate of the Committee of the Board of Supervisors on Armories or Drill-rooms, or of the person appointed by them to superintend the work or receive the property.

[Of the twenty-nine bills examined, with but one exception this certificate is neither filled out nor signed. The exception is in the case of warrant No. 535, issued to INGERSOLL & Co. for $7,855 62. The bill is made out by Ingersoll & Co., receipted by Ingersoll & Co., and Ingersoll & Co. certify that the service has been performed, the goods delivered, that they were necessary, and that the prices were just and reasonable.

The laws of 1847, chapter 420, section 2, as already noted, require items to be specified. How much attention was paid to the provisions of this law is illustrated by the following voucher:

LABOR NOTES.

Prospect of a Settlement of the Strike—The Trade Meetings.

The chief feature of the labor movement yesterday seemed to be the effort for a compromise on the part of third parties. It was announced that BOOTH & Co. resolved to return to the ten-hour system with increase of wages. The marble-cutters and polishers were in trouble because dealers refused to sell marble to those employers who granted eight hours. The iron-molders received aid at their meeting. The following are the resolutions looking toward a compromise:

Mr. Cooper and Gentlemen of the Citizens' Association and of the Bureau of Migration:

In pursuance of a proposition handed into this League yesterday, the iron and metal workers, after considerable discussion have passed the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, The Citizens' Association, of which the venerable PETER COOPER is President, has proposed that conference take place between employers and employes for the purpose of effecting, if possible, an amicable adjustment of the pending struggle and strike for eight hours; and

Whereas, The Citizens' Association is disinterested, and believes the said adjustment may be brought about by a system of reasoning between the parties interested; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this League appoint a delegation of three to act in conjunction with similar eight-hour Leagues, to inform employers either at their challenge or invitation, at any time they may arrange for said amicable adjustment, the said Citizens' Association officiating as umpire; and be it further

Resolved, That no mutual decision there arrived at shall be considered valid or final until ratified by the Leagues. (Signed,) ALBERT J. DANCE,
NEW-YORK, June 25, 1872. Secretary.

The Custom-house weighers met last evening at No. 26 North William-street to take action on the subject of the petition which was published in yesterday's TIMES. Owing, however, to the paucity of the meeting, and that of the seventeen districts only fourteen were represented, the meeting adjourned to next Saturday at 8 P. M.

The German boss barbers accepted the terms of the employes last evening.

Nearly all of the stable-keepers in Brooklyn have conceded the demands of the hack-drivers.

An adjourned meeting of the iron-founders was held at Knickerbocker Cottage, No. 456 Sixth-avenue, yesterday afternoon, to consider the labor question.

The barbers in Brooklyn are organizing for a strike.

It was decided to postpone the day of the trades parade from the 4th of July to the 1st of August, at a meeting in Demit Hall last night.

MATTHEW POWERS, a Jersey City striker, who assaulted Officer EATON, on the 15th inst., was sentenced by Judge RANDOLPH to eight months, imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

The iron manufacturers of Jersey City, whose employes have struck for eight hours, have signed the following resolution:

We, the manufacturers and workers in metals in Jersey City, having in a number of cases had demands made upon us by our employes that eight hours should constitute a day's labor, and that payment therefor be made upon the basis of ten hours' work, have taken said demands into consideration.

After full reflection upon the interests involved, we have come to the conclusion that such concession is entirely inadmissible without disastrous results to ourselves, our employes, and the business interests of Jersey City; and we do therefore declare that we have

Resolved, That our business shall be conducted upon the ten-hour plan, without any advance upon the present wages.

The paper is signed by all the iron manufacturing firms in Jersey City, twenty-three in number.

The boiler-makers of Paterson, 3,000 in number, refused to go to work yesterday without an increase of pay. They demand twenty per cent. increase. They have received $2 50 and demand $3. Some of the employers, notably the Grant Locomotive Works, yesterday offered to compromise by the tender of twenty-five cents a day extra, but the men refused, and for the present the strike appears to be a threatening blow to Paterson industry.

Strike of the Lockport Stone-Cutters.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., June 25.—The stone-cutters at work in the extensive limestone quarries of B. & J. CARPENTER, of this city, are on a strike. The cause of the strike is a difference between the workmen and the Messrs. CARPENTER about the prices to be paid for piece-work.

The Eight-Hour Question in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, June 25.—The iron and metal workers employed in the Erie Railway Company's works here met early this evening, and formed an Iron and Metal Workers' League, on the plan of the New-York and Jersey City Leagues.

THE JUBILEE.

Largest Attendance Since the Opening—Cordial Reception of the President by the Audience—The Performance.

BOSTON, Mass., June 25.—The Coliseum was filled today to overflowing, and at least 5,000 people were turned away from the doors. Seventy thousand persons occupied the seats, aisles and promenades. Twenty thousand tickets for standing places were sold. The bands from abroad joined with the Marine Band, of Washington, in performing "Hail to the Chief," in honor of the President of the United States, who, with Secretaries FISH, BOUTWELL and ROBESON, Senator WILSON and numerous other distinguished guests were present and had seats in the centre of the auditorium. The President received a cordial greeting as he entered. He, in company with Mayor GASTON and other city dignitaries, were escorted to the Coliseum by the National Lancers, and though rain fell large numbers viewed the cortége. Mme. PESCHKA LEUTNER gave her aria and variations by ADAM, with flute obligato by KOPPITZ, and repeated it, in reply to an encore. STRAUSS electrified the audience with two delightful waltzes. The Kaiser Franz Grenadier Band gave a fantasie from "Les Huguenots." The "Anvil Chorus" was repeated, with all the outside accessories. An original hymn "Hail, Gentle Peace," was sung by chorus and audience. The Star Spangled Banner solo, by Mrs. J. HOUSTON WEST, was given by the chorus with great éclat and organ and cannon accompaniment. The overture to "Zampa" followed, by the Garde Republicaine Band, and was rapturously applauded. The three foreign bands, with the American band, will appear with individual celebrities and chorus each afternoon during the week, and band concerts will be given every evening.

THE INDIANS.

Interview of the Apaches with Mr. McCormick, Delegate in Congress from Arizona.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—The delegation of Arizona Indians, nine in number, paid a visit this afternoon to Hon. P. C. MCCORMICK, Congressional delegate from that territory, at his residence, accompanied by Gen. HOWARD and other gentlemen. They were first treated to sprightly airs on the piano, after which Mr. MCCORMICK and Gen. HOWARD spoke a few words, which were interpreted to them.

MIGUELL, the great Caytero Apachee, war chief; SANTOS, of the Pinal Apaches, and ESKELTASALA, of the Cayteros, responded, promising to use their influence in behalf of peace between their tribes and the whites.

Mr. MCCORMICK informed them that heretofore Congress had appropriated only seventy thousand dollars for the Indians in Arizona, but at the late session this amount was increased more than four-fold, and that this amount would be expended for the benefit of all who remain at peace and continue on their reservations. The Indians were told by Gen. HOWARD that Mr. MCCORMICK had for some years been the representative of Arizona in Congress, had been very zealous for the interests of the whites, and had striven to and watched the welfare of the Indians, whose chief men had now for the first time seen that gentleman and conversed with him. The interview was pleasant and promises good results.

THE PEABODY FUND.

The following members of the Board were present: ROBERT C. WINTHROP, Chairman; HAMILTON FISH, Vice-Chairman; President GRANT; J. H. CLIFFORD, of Massachusetts; WILLIAM AIKEN, of South Carolina; WILLIAM A. GRAHAM, of North Carolina; C. MACALESTER, of Philadelphia; SAMUEL WETMORE, of New-York; GEORGE N. ETON, of Maryland; SAMUEL WATSON, of Tennessee; A. H. H. STUART, of Virginia; and Gen. "DICK" TAYLOR, of Louisiana. The absentees were: Right Rev. C. P. MCILVAINE, one of the Vice-Chairmen, who is in Europe; WILLIAM M. EVARTS, of the Geneva Arbitration; GEORGE W. RIGGS, of Washington, who is too ill to be here; and GEORGE PEABODY RUSSELL, of this State, now abroad. The attention of the meeting was principally occupied by routine formalities. Adjourned until 10 A. M. to-morrow.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

An Anti-Suffragist Lecture Disturbed by Women—One of Them Draws a Pistol.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 25.—Mrs. LOOMIS, from the East, while lecturing against woman suffrage, was interrupted by the hisses and jeers of the leading female suffragists who were present. Hon. DAVID MEEKER insisted that the disgraceful conduct be stopped, or that the offending women be compelled to leave the hall. Mrs. PITTS STEVENS, the editor of the Pioneer, the suffragist organ, drew a pistol on him and demanded an apology, but was forced to put the pistol in her pocket by the by-standers.

Trial of the City Clerk of Hoboken for Embezzlement.

In the Hudson County Court of Special Sessions, FREDERICK E. ROWALD, the defaulting Clerk of the City of Hoboken was called up for trial, yesterday, upon an indictment charging him with having converted to his own use certain moneys intrusted to him which belonged to the city. Judge RANDOLPH presided. On the calling of the case, counsel for the defense asked that the defendant be allowed to withdraw his plea, to admit of a motion to quash the indictment. Counsel moved to quash on the grounds: First, that the defendant did not hold an office of trust and profit under the State, as set forth in the indictment; second, that the description of the property was not specific enough for an indictment for larceny, and third, the second and third counts charged two separate and distinct crimes, one of embezzlement, the other of fraudulently disposing of money.

After argument on both sides, Judge RANDOLPH overruled the motion, and the trial proceeded. The first witness called was Mayor SCHMERSAHL, of Hoboken, who testified he had known the prisoner several years; he had been City Clerk since 1870; prior to that he was acting as assistant City Clerk; he acted as Clerk to March 25, 1872; at that time it was found that his accounts were not straight; an examination was made; there was a deficiency of $3,200 or $3,300; he was asked where the money was; ROWALD said he could not account for it; then he said he would try to make the deficiency good; he was allowed two days in which to do it; he said he would go in the meantime to see his uncle, who lived in Brooklyn; nothing came of it, for his uncle refused to make good the deficiency, though he referred him to another uncle of the prisoner in New-York; this uncle, a Mr. TRAPHAGEN, came over, and both of them finally left without doing anything; when informed there was no prospect of bringing the matter to a settlement, he made an affidavit before the Recorder and had the Clerk placed under arrest.

Several other witnesses will be called by the State before the case rests, and it is likely that the trial will be a protracted one.

The New-York and Long Island Bridge Company.

The stockholders of the New-York and Long Island Bridge Company have elected the following officers: JNO. L. BROWN, President; A. M. Bliss, Secretary; Herman T. Livingston, Treasurer; John T. Conover, F. W. Winans, Jacob M. Long, D. M. Pettee and S. F. Knapp, Executive Committee; Herman T. Livingston, Geo. Willets and C. B. Trafford, Auditing Committee; Stephen C. Walker, Wm. C. Connor, Henry Vandewater and Isaac D. Coleman, Financial Committee. Steps will be taken immediately to obtain possession of property required for the construction of the bridge.

Assessment Collectors' Fees.

Commissioner VAN NORT, under the provisions of the charter, has designated the compensation of the Collector and Deputy Collectors of Assessments by reducing their fees in the aggregate about one-half on assessments confirmed after July 1 next, collectable from property-owners for opening, extending and widening streets, avenues and public places, and for regulating, grading, paving and sewering streets and avenues. In opening public parks or places a large portion of the cost is usually assessed upon the City at large, the fees for which the Commissioner has abolished.

The Riverside Park.

The Riverside Park Commissioners closed their sittings yesterday, at No. 82 Nassau-street. Mr. JACOB VANDERPOEL appeared on behalf of himself and others; Mr. KITCHELL, for Mr. ELI WHITE and others, and Mr. LOCKWOOD for Mr. PETER B. AMNOY and others, the arguments being against the assessments and award. During the week the Committee will hold secret sessions to prepare their report, which is to be presented in the Supreme Court on July 10, and if approved, it is probable that work on the new Park will be commenced at once.

THE TURF.

The Long Branch and Other Races.

Sixteen Contests to Take Place at Monmouth Park—Saturday the First of the Meeting—Closing Stakes.

The third July meeting of the Monmouth Park Association at Long Branch will begin on Saturday, and the great anticipations of exciting sport promise to be realized by a glance at the programme issued for the meeting. The meeting will be inaugurated with a grand national steeple-chase, for all ages, over a fine hunting course of three miles, afforded by the excellent conformation of the course, and the artistic manner in which the jumps have been arranged. The purse is $800, with money to second and third horses. The second race will be a trial purse of $450, with money to second and third horses, for all ages, a dash of a mile. The meeting now being fairly under way, the rich Jersey Derby Stakes, for three-year olds, will be run. The distance is a mile and a half, and the value of the stakes $3,550. Of the forty-one entries, we should not be surprised to see ten or a dozen starters, and among them Uncle JOHN HARPER'S ch. f. Flatina by Planet, out of Aerolite, by Lexington; Experience Oakes, by imp. Bonnie Scotland, out of Sally, by Lexington; Ethel Sprague, the full sister to Nellie Ransom; D. MCDANIEL'S ch. c. Joe Daniels by imp. Australian, out of Dolly Carter, by imp. Glencoe, winner of the Belmont stakes at Jerome Park; Mr. BELMONT'S g. Planet and Hunter and Travers imp. b. c. Buckden, by Lord Clifden, out of Consequence. There are several colts entered, who will make their debuts in this race as three-year olds, and we expect to see the favorite Joe Daniels beaten. The second will be the grand day of the meeting, and in fact of the year. It will come on Tuesday, July 2. The first race is the Hopeful Stakes, for two-year olds, half a mile, which has twenty-six entries, and there will be an excellent field of starters. The value of the stake is $1,800, and Mr. CHAMBERLIN expects to win it with Mary Constant, the full sister to Tubman. The second race is a purse of $600, mile heats, for all ages; and then comes the great contest for the Monmouth Cup, in which there are twelve entries. Longfellow and Harry Bassett will come together for the first time, and other good ones will join issue with them, horses that are not to be despised even by Dutch two great "guns." There is Monarchist, Alroy, Velly Ransom and Glenelg, who will do some "tall" running and keep the pace hot. It is expected that 50,000 people will witness this race. On the third day there will be a steeple-chase for gentlemen riders, for a punch-bowl, valued at $500, over the steeple-chase course; a selling race for a purse of $500, a mile and a quarter, and the Monmouth Oaks Stakes, for three-year old fillies, which has thirty-five entries, making the value of the stakes $2,750. The distance is a mile and a half, and the most prominent candidates for the race are Platina and Extract, belonging to "Uncle" JOHN HARPER, Ethel Sprague, Magnolia, Woodbine, Inversnaid, Girt of the Period. HARNESS' ch. f., by Asteroid, out of Little Miss, by imp. Sovereign, and Experience Oaks. The fourth race will be the Mansion-house Stakes for four-year-old colts and fillies, value $1,000, added to a sweepstakes of $60 each, play or pay 2½ miles. There are thirteen entries in this; among them Harry Bassett; and although he will come in contact with Ginger, the fast son of Wer Dance and Georgie Woods, it may be considered his race, if he comes out all right after his contest with Longfellow. The fourth day will fall on the 4th of July, and the first race will be the July Stakes, for two-year olds, three-quarters of a mile, in which there are twenty-two "babies," and it will puzzle the connoisseurs to pick the winner out of the lot. The second race will be the Jersey Jockey Club purse of $1,500 for all ages, mile heats, best three in five. The third race will be a purse of $600 for beaten horses, all ages, with the usual allowances. The distance is a mile and a half. Friday, July 5, will be the last day of the meeting, and the first race will be a hurdle-race, with welter weights, of two miles, over eight hurdles. The second will be a dash of three miles for a purse of $1,000, which Longfellow and Harry Bassett will doubtless go for it. The concluding race of the meeting will bring together the three-year olds in the Monmouth Sequel Stakes of two miles, with penalties for winners. There are twenty-four entries, and Mr. M. A. LITTELL'S gr. c. London, by Lightning, out of sister to Jerome Edgar, will start for the first time in the East. He was one of the best two-year olds last year, and ran an excellent race in 1:45, at Crab Orchard, in Kentucky. The sport thus mapped out will make the coming meeting at Monmouth Park the most interesting in the annals of the the turf.

Stakes to Close.

On the 15th of July the principal stakes of the American Jockey Club and the Saratoga Association for 1873 and 1874 will close. The stakes of the Jockey Club are as follows: The Belmont Stakes, for three-year olds, to be run the first meeting of 1874; the Jerome Stakes, (late Champion Stakes,) for three-year olds, to be run during the Fall of 1874; the Nursery Stakes, for two-year olds, for the Fall meeting of 1873; the Ladies' Stakes, for three-year old fillies, to be run the first meeting of 1874, and the Maturity Stakes, for four-year olds, to run in the Fall meeting of 1874. The stakes of the Saratoga Association are the Saratoga Stakes, for two-year olds, to be run in 1873. The Travers Stakes, for three-year olds, to be run in 1874. The Alabama Stakes, for fillies foaled in 1871, to be run in 1874. The Kentucky Stakes, for two-year olds, to be run at the Summer meeting of 1873, and the Kenner Stakes, for three-year olds, to be run the second Summer meeting of 1874.

The Great Trotting Contest

The great trotting contest, between Goldsmith Maid, Lucy, American Girl and Henry for a purse of $5,000, will take place to-morrow at the Prospect Park Fair Grounds, if the weather is propitious. The rain of yesterday has laid the dust on the roads, and if the sun will bring his rays to bear on them between now and Thursday afternoon, the traveling will be pleasant and the course will be in admirable condition. The excitement over this race is second only to that between Harry Bassett and Longfellow, and there will be an immense crowd at the beautiful Fair Grounds at Gravesend.

The French Pools.

The Paris mutual pools, which were so successful at the Jerome Park meeting under the management of Mr. L. W. JEROME, have been adopted by the Monmouth Park Association, and they will be a permanent feature during the race season. An office has been opened at No. 71 East Thirteenth-street, next door to Wallack's Theatre, and is under the management of THEODORE MOSS. The pools will be in operation this evening on the Monmouth Cup.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

A CONCERT TO-NIGHT AT ORANGE.

An interesting concert will be heard to-night at Orange. It is given by Miss H. M. GIBBS, formerly a resident of Orange, and highly esteemed there. Miss GIBBS will be assisted by Mr. S. B. MILLS, the eminent pianist, by Miss Matilda E. TOEDT, whose fame as a violinist is so well established, and by Mr. T. BALDWIN, the baritone. Besides the attraction assured by these powerful names, the Arion Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. EMIL EHRLICK, is to perform. The club consists of young gentlemen who were all formerly members of the choir of Trinity Church, New-York, and much is expected of their performance. Signor E. MAVZO is the general accompanist and conductor, and full material is thus collected for a musical entertainment of the first class. It is seldom that the people of Orange, great lovers of music as so many of them are, have the opportunity to enjoy a concert of this character in their own town, and we hope that therefore they will numerously avail of it. It is hardly needful to speak of the claims of Miss GIBBS, since that lady is so well known, and her accomplishments are so highly esteemed in the place where her concert is given. We should state that the concert will take place at the High School Hall, and that it is advertised to begin at 8 o'clock.

ENGLISH AFFAIRS.

The Treaty Question—British Relations with France—Anti-English Sentiment of the French Nation—Irish Troubles.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, June 15, 1872.

"What is going on now at Geneva?" is the question of the hour. Is the treaty at an end; can the British Government do anything alone; can the Tribunal untie or cut the knot of the indirect claims? It has been an anxious time on 'Change, and the successive editions of the evening papers have done a roaring trade. People seemed to be never tired of buying them, though they contained nothing new. On Monday there will be an exciting conversation, I suppose, in both Houses of Parliament, and anxious inquiries as to the fate of the treaty by the candid friends, who, for party purposes, have done their best to kill it. It may be admitted that this experiment in international arbitration has not been very encouraging on either side, but it should be observed whence the difficulties have come. Each Government has had to carry on negotiations—I am speaking, of course, of the later negotiations—under a constant fire of criticism, insinuation, malicious questioning and downright misrepresentation from political opponents anxious to deprive it of the credit of successfully negotiating a valuable treaty. The Gladstone Government is at present not popular in the country on many grounds, and there can be no doubt that it has committed mistakes in reference to the treaty. Yet, I believe that if a vote of confidence were to be taken on this question alone, they would be certain of a good majority. "These things ought not to be made party questions," is the remark I hear almost everywhere out of partisan Conservative circles. And I suppose the manly common sense of the United States comes to pretty much the same conclusion, although politicians, no doubt, are pretty much the same everywhere.

BRITISH RELATIONS WITH FRANCE.

It is now regarded as tolerably certain that the Commercial treaty between Great Britain and France will not be renewed. There is a certain amount of official hopefulness, it is true, but that does not mean much. Until it is quite certain that no arrangement can be come to, officials are bound in courtesy to assume that an arrangement is still possible, whatever may be their private opinions on the subject. It is scarcely possible, however, for the British Government to abandon the position it has taken up; that it will concede anything reasonably necessary for the fiscal exigencies of France, but nothing to protectionist theories; and, on the other hand, it is extremely improbable that with M. THIERS at the head of affairs, France will be able to throw off protectionist delusions. In one respect the French have an advantage over the English. As regards England's general tariff the latter will certainly not indulge in retaliation. They will not tax themselves for silks and light wines in order to punish their neighbors for their ignorance of the first principles of political economy. Bt it is not impossible that the French may be made to feel their dependence upon England for coal in a way they will not like. The treaty assures them an unrestricted supply, but when the treaty lapses, they will be supplied only on such conditions and to such an extent as the British Government chooses to determine. And now that the Germans have got the Saarbrücken coal-fields, this is rather a serious matter for French industry. I fancy that apart from their leaning toward protection, the French are not particularly sorry to have the opportunity of annoying England on what they believe to be her most tender point—commercial activity. It often happens that a belligerent is more bitter against a neutral bystander than against the enemy with whom he has fought, and it is impossible not to observe among all classes of Frenchmen, and in French journals of every party, a rooted idea that England was bound to assist France in the late war, and behaved very badly in leaving her at the mercy of the Germans. "Ah, you will find out your mistake some day," they say. "You should have stood by us as we stood by you in the Crimea." It is, perhaps, needless to say that, in point of fact, NAPOLEON did his best to jockey England out of the solid fruits of the war, and to make private terms for himself with Russia. The real difficulty, however, in 1870, would have been to come to an understanding as to what France the English would have to support. Was it Imperial France, Republican France, Legitimist or Orleanist France—the France of the priest, of the shop-keeper, or of the Commune? If the French had been able to make up their own minds on this point, they would not have been so badly beaten, and perhaps they might not have been beaten at all. All these considerations are consistently ignored in reckoning up the ingratitude and perfidy of England. The deportation of destitute Communist prisoners to this country is a conspicuous instance of the petty spitefulness of the French authorities; and the English are beginning to understand that when the Commercial treaty is at an end they will not only come under an oppressive tariff, but will be placed in the position of the least-favored nations. The treaties with other countries have longer to run, and during their operation English ships will be placed at a disadvantage as compared with those under other flags.

IRISH TROUBLES.

It has now been decided, not only that Capt. NOLAN, the clerical and Home Rule candidate for Galway shall lose his seat, but that his opponent, Capt. TRENCH, shall get it, although he polled only an insignificant minority of votes. There can be no doubt that the Roman Catholic priests, in supporting NOLAN, used unjustifiable violence, and intimidated the electors by all the means which the spiritual authority placed in their power; and NOLAN has therefore been justly unseated. But it is a questionable principle that because one candidate is disqualified in this way his rival should be returned in his place to represent the constituency, whether the electors like it or not. The Irish Judges, however, have given their decisions in favor of the call, one of their number, Chief-Justice MONAGHAN, alone dissenting; and the House of Commons has no option but to accept the decision. This result, coupled with the vehement and stinging language in which Justice KEOGH denounced the offending priests, has naturally created a good deal of excitement, not only in Galway, but in Ireland generally. The Roman Catholic clergy are of course anxious to raise a dust, so that their incriminated brethren in Galway may be hidden from sight, and may thus escape punishment. The Judge is almost daily burned in effigy in Irish towns, and he stated from the Bench, a few days since, that he had been threatened in the most alarming manner, both publicly and privately. He has now arrived in England, having quitted Dublin under a strong escort of police; and there is a report that he meditates retirement from the Bench. There can be no doubt that his judgment was delivered in most indiscreet and wantonly offensive language; but there is equally little doubt that it was sound in substance, and that the outrageous conduct of the clergy demanded severe rebuke. The Government is, of course, bound to support him; but it is placed in a difficult position by the notices which have been given in the House of Commons of motions on the subject, on the one hand censuring, and on the other upholding the Judge's decision. If the Government go against the priests they will offend an important section of their supporters, and if they seem to take their part it will exasperate the Orangemen and give countenance to the current belief that there is a secret compact between the Gladstone Ministry and the Roman Catholic hierarchy. However this difficulty may be got over, there can be no doubt that the policy of the Court of Rome must tend greatly to the embarrassment of the English Government in Irish affairs. The idea underlying the infallibility dogma, and the policy which it represents, is simply that it is better for the Church to rule a compact body of devoted and unquestioning adherents than to be troubled with skeptical and latitudinarian followers, who can be trusted only up to a certain point, and whose freedom of thought must be gradually sapping away what faith they have left and infecting their neighbors. Justice KEOGH'S judgment is not the first, but it is the loudest note of the old Catholics in Ireland, and hence the irritation which it has produced among the clergy. F. H. J.

YACHT RACE IN THE STORM.

A Spirited Contest Between the Dart and Brogan—The Former Wins.

A match was made a month ago between the sloop yacht Dart, 19 feet 10½ inches, owned by Mr. H. RUSH, of the Union Club, Long Island, and the Brogan, 20 feet 2 inches, owned by Capt. MURPHY, of Jersey City Club. The stipulations were that the race should be sailed yesterday regardless of the state of the weather, the course to be ten miles to windward and back. The stake was $150 a side. At about 10 o'clock, yesterday morning, the judges appointed from Jersey City had failed to come, and consequently two others were appointed in their place. They accordingly started out to where the competing boats were anchored, and asked each of the Captains if he was willing to race. "Certainly," was the reply; "we can't have a better day for wind." And, indeed, it was blowing so hard that it seemed impossible for such light frail craft to live through such a storm. The north-easter made a heavy chopping sea. The judges started off in the Frank, Capt. BATES, and at once laid out the course which was from the can buoy off Robin's Reef, round the light-house, thence to a stake-boat anchored off FRANK BATES' Clubhouse, going over the course four times, making about sixteen miles. Arrived on the ground the judges signaled to the contestants who speedily came up running like race-horses before the wind. At 10:41:30 the signal for starting was given, but the Brogan took the lead of the Dart by ten seconds. The passage to the stake-boat was a dead beat to windward, in which the Dart displayed most excellent sailing qualities, very soon overhauling her opponent, and taking the windward position before half-way across, and continuing to increase her lead until she reached the stake-boat, which she passed three minutes fifty seconds ahead, having been ten seconds behind at the start. As soon as she passed the stake-boat and started before a free wind, the Dart boomed out her jib and rushed through the water. The Brogan, for some reason, failed to take this advantage, and the consequence was that the *

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The legal sale of a house and lot on East Forty-first-street, 16 feet 8 inches east of Second-avenue, announced to take place yesterday, Tuesday, June 25, by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., was adjourned until Saturday, the 29th inst. All the suburban auctions expected to occur yesterday, were also, in consequence of the storm adjourned, as follows: Sale at Bayside, Long Island, JERE. JOHNSON, auctioneer, postponed until today, when should the storm continue it will be held on Friday. Sale at New Brighton, Staten Island, J. M. PHELPS, auctioneer, postponed until to-morrow, Thursday, June 27. Excursion to and sale at Mannahawken, N. J., A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO., auctioneers, also postponed to Thursday. All free passes issued for special trains, ferries, &c., and other arrangements made for these proposed transactions will hold good for the days noted. The sale of Boulevard lots to-morrow at the Exchange, under the direction of MULLER, WILKINS & Co., is attracting generally the attention of real estate investors, and the auction is regarded as one of the most important projected for a long time past. It is understood that the entire property, fifty-four lots in all, situated in the block bounded by the Grand Boulevard, Eleventh-avenue, Seventy-first and Seventy-second streets, will be offered, and special interest is excited as to the probable result. The realty is exceedingly choice, and first-class prices should be obtained, for the attendance will be large, and bidding will therefore be active.

For today the following sales are proposed: At the Exchange, by A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co., and JOSEPH McGUIRE, respectively, at legal auctions, sale of a house and lot on East Twenty-fifth-street, near First-avenue, and sale of two houses and lots known as Nos. 127 and 129 West Broadway, between White and Walker streets. At Rutherfurd Park, N. J., on the property, at 12 M., sale, by A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO., of 100 very choice building lots, together with an Italian villa. Special train, via Twenty-third-street Ferry, at 11 o'clock, and Chambers-street at 11¼ o'clock. At Greenville, Hudson County, N. J., on the ground, at 2½ P. M., continuation sale by LEWIS E. WOOD of the valuable property, embracing some 200 lots, owned by the Hudson County Land Improvement Company. At Bayside, Long Island, on the premises, at 12½ o'clock, sale by JERE. JOHNSON, JR., of 1,000 desirable lots. Special train, via James-slip and Thirty-fourth-street Ferries, at 11 A. M. Also, at Summers, Westchester County, on the ground, at 1 o'clock, sale by HUGH N. CAMP, of a farm of 400 acres of land, with expensive buildings thereon, known as the property of BENJAMIN F. CAMP. These proposed auctions are all of importance, while the superior character of the real estate in each instance to be sold renders the day a notable one in the market, and should the weather prove favorable, the result, without doubt, be able to chronicle good sales.

The suburban auction held at Park Ridge, N. J., on Monday, June 24, by A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO., was moderately well attended, and some fifty city lots were disposed of, at an average of $40 per lot, sold principally to New-York buyers. Selling lots at auction in this section of New-Jersey is a new thing, and the owners of the property accomplished all that was designed on Monday, in bringing their enterprise to the notice of the public. It is designed later in the season to hold another sale, on a larger scale, at this place, when, with the improvements now in progress completed, a greater success will probably be achieved.

On the street, yesterday, in the way of private sales, the market was unusually quiet, and nothing occurred during the day worthy of note.

In consequence of the rain yesterday the sale of 450 lots at New-Brighton, Staten Island, was postponed until to-morrow at noon, as announced in our advertising columns.

Look out for our large advertisement in Tribune and Sun today.
Free tickets, maps, &c., can be had at the office of the auctioneers, No. 112 Broadway; MABEN & CO., No. 15 Willoughby and No. 306 Montague-st., Brooklyn; J. M. MEEKER, opposite Depot, Elizabeth, and Real Estate Offices, opposite Depot, Plainfield.

CANADA SOUTHERN
First Mortgage Sinking Fund 30 Years
7 PER CT. GOLD BONDS
AT
90 and ACCRUED INTEREST.

The Road runs from Buffalo to the Detroit River, and is the Eastern link in the new AIR LINE FROM BUFFALO TO CHICAGO, and has been under construction for about two years past by railroad men who have seen the necessity for a STEEL RAIL, LOW GRADE SHORT ROUTE between the great railroad systems which diverge from Chicago, Toledo and Buffalo.

Among the builders of the road, by whose cash subscriptions 220 miles (out of 290) have already been graded, bridged and made ready for the superstructure, a large part of the steel rails bought, all of the materials for the stations, and a part of the equipment purchased, are:
MILTON COURTRIGHT, JOHN F. TRACY DAVID DOWS, WM. L. SCOTT, HENRY FARNHAM, R. A. FORSYTH, HENRY H. PORTER, JOHN M. BURKE, M. L. SYKES, JR., B. F. ALLEN, all directors, either in the Chicago and North west, or the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; GEO. OPDYKE, of the Midland Road; JOHN B. ALLEN, SIDNEY DILLON, DANIEL DREW, J. S. CASEMENT, J. & J. CASEY, O. S. CHAPMAN, JOHN ROSS, DAVID STEWART, and F. H. WINSTON.
THE ROAD will be
33 MILES SHORTER THAN ANY OTHER ROAD,
either BUILT or in contemplation between Buffalo and Chicago, and will also shorten the distance between Toledo and Buffalo twenty-three miles.
THE MAXIMUM GRADE on the entire line does not exceed FIFTEEN FEET to the mile—and Ninety-six per cent of the road IS STRAIGHT.
THE ROAD WILL BE COMPLETED and in running order on or before Dec. 31 of this year.
The principal and interest of the bonds are payable either in New-York, London or Frankfort.
We confidently recommend the bonds to all classes of investors.

Large Attendance and General Interest in the Proceedings—Prospects of the Colleges in the Future.

PRINCETON COLLEGE.

Oration of Senator Frelinghuysen—The Junior Oratorical Contest.

The heavy storm at Trenton yesterday prevented the great influx of strangers and former students which usually takes place on Tuesday of Commencement week, but the crowd was very large. It was raining heavily at 9 o'clock, the hour announced for the commencement of the gymnastic exhibition, but the galleries of the gymnasium were filled, as were all the seats and standing room upon the floor. Prof. GOLDIE presented a class of about fifteen young men, chosen from the various classes, whose evolutions on the horizontal and parallel bars, the rings, trapeze, &c., showed a thorough training. The audience, many of whom were evidently strong believers in muscular Christianity, was very enthusiastic, and applause was frequent.

At 11 o'clock the literary societies formed in procession and marched to the Church, preceded by the band and headed by President MCCOSH and Senator FRELINGHUYSEN, who had been chosen by the Cliosophic Society to deliver the annual oration.

Dr. MCCOSH read a letter from Secretary BELKNAP, written subsequently to the last Commencement, in which he conveyed to the Faculty and trustees the thanks of President GRANT and his own for their pleasant reception, and expressed their best wishes for the future success of the College.

Senator FRELINGHUYSEN, on being introduced, announced as his subject, "Our National Characteristic Equality; What it is, and the Benefits Resulting from It." The freedom of our equality is growing greater and stronger. If anyone conceives that the theme equality signifies that there are not inherent distinctions in men which can never be done away, he forms a wrong opinion, and one opposed to his every-day observations. It may seem paradoxical, but it is the distinctions between men that creates the basis of political equality. We are all equal in our susceptibility to mental and physical pain, to sympathy and sorrow, and equal in our dependence upon God.

But this question has a governmental aspect. For centuries unnumbered multitudes lived as the vassals of their rulers. This lasted until the great light came which taught us to undo the work of centuries, and we learned the sublime truth of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Eighteen hundred years afterward these truths had permeated society, raised man to his true dignity, and the charter-right of a great nation was based on equality and right. Yet on this bright page there is a dark blot, resulting in a terrible contest which good taste and inclination alike prevent me from mentioning. I may hope, however, our relations are more cordial now that the contest is ended. Individuals suffered, but the nation came out of the flames seven times heated and purified. Full and free equality is now part of our Constitution. But the benefits resulting from our freedom are great. Competency is so distributed among our people that poverty no where obtrudes itself; and if you want to see it you must search for it. There are incentives to intellectual development. The general distribution of knowledge, the papers, the ability to rise to national and State councils; colleges, schools, the ballot-box and the jury; all these are the result of political equality. The speaker, in conclusion, advised the members of the College, using this freedom, to choose that calling in which their chances of success were greatest.

After the conclusion of the oration the literary societies held their annual meetings in their respective halls, their meetings being secret.

At 3½ o'clock the annual meeting of the Alumni took place in the chapel.

In the evening the Junior oratorical contest took place. The addresses were by four members selected from the Cliosophic and an equal number from the American Whig Society, the two literary societies connected with the College. The prizes will be announced today at the same time as the announcement of the fellowships and degrees at the close of the Commencement exercises.

VASSAR COLLEGE.

Closing Exercise of the Year—Ceremony at the Chapel—Planting the Tree—Names of the Graduates.

From Our Own Correspondent.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Tuesday, June 25, 1872.

The closing of the collegiate year at Vassar is a very important event in this usually quiet city. Indeed, it well may be, for the place is crowded with strangers from all parts of the country, who throng the hotels, and afford a fair field for profit to a multitude of avaricious hackmen, who are constantly employed in taking them to or from the college grounds. It is certain that the Commencement of no male college in America could draw one-half the number of visitors that have come to this—a fact which may be accounted for when it is remembered that it is not necessary for anxious papas and mammas to come all the way from St. Louis or Savannah to take their sons home, as is the case with their daughters. From the number of young men I have seen here today, I should judge, however, that the sudden inflow of visitors was not wholly made up of parents—a supposition that is so very natural, that I trust it will be pardoned. Of course the centre of attraction is at the College, where the Class Day exercises have just been concluded. The College building is situated about two miles from the city, in the centre of a pleasant valley, and, from its immense size and isolated position, resembles at a distance the old palace of the Escurial, in Spain. Once within it, the resemblance is entirely lost. When I arrived there, at about noon today, the long corridors, which run the whole length of the building, were filled with young ladies, from stately seniors of twenty down to humble "Preps," hardly in their teens. I should judge that there were at the exercises today, including students and their friends, some six or seven hundred persons.

BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY.

The exercises were held in the chapel, which had been handsomely decorated for the occasion. The Senior and Junior Classes occupied the centre seats; the lower classes the gallery, while the visitors found whatever places they might in the space left. It is when they are all assembled in this way that the best idea can be had of the physical effect of a high education on the American woman. With all its advantages, I think it must be admitted that the result is not unconditionally good. Whether it is the outward development of particular mental powers, or the steady routine of years to which they are subjected that produces it, it would be difficult to say, but it is certain that many of the members of the higher classes seem stern and masculine in character and appearance, and have an air of abstraction, which renders them much less attractive than they would be were their attainments more purely feminine. This is not said to detract at all from the merits of Vassar, it is entirely a matter of fact. Female education is yet in its infancy, and few would dare to claim that in following the exact curriculum laid down for male education, the trustees of Vassar had found what was completely adapted to the female mind. The system is an experiment, and will, like all great improvements, undergo many changes before it becomes what it should be. At two o'clock precisely the exercises were opened, and were as follows: Opening Address, ALICE D. SEELYE; History, MARY J. RAWSON; Poem, W. H. ELLIOT; Prophecy, ANNIE B. FOLGER.

All of the four addresses were of really decided merit and had a tone of originality which proved that they were entirely native productions, and in no way due to the after pruning of too careful teachers and Professors. It was singular to notice the aims for a future life which filled the minds of most of the graduates, which could be best gathered from what was called the "Prophecy," and which was probably drawn from the privately expressed wishes of the students. In these predictions there was everywhere an expressed intention of entering a life of what might be called public usefulness. One was to be an artist, another an editor, a third a physician, and so on through the professions and arts. Undoubtedly much of this spirit will evaporate in the quiet years of home-life that will succeed, but that its influence is strong for good no one who has witnessed one of these exhibitions would think of denying.

Owing to the severe rain-storm the time-honored ceremony of planting the Class tree had to be dispensed with, though the addresses that accompanied it were delivered in the chapel. The spade with which the rite was to be performed was delivered by MARY A. LOOMIS to ELLA WEED, of the Junior, who received it with a very happy and witty address. After this the Class song, composed by Miss W. H. ELLIOT, was sung, and the exercises concluded for the afternoon. Music and dancing were provided for those who cared to stay, and for several hours the corridors were filled with merry groups. This evening the Philalethean Address is to be delivered by Miss MORRIS, a graduate of the Class of 1870.

The names of the members of the Graduating Class are as follows:

Anna Blackmar, Newark; Maria Porter Brace, Leavenworth, Kansas; Sarah Affia Catlin, Crown Point; Ida Corson, Plymouth Meeting, Penn.; Lucy Elliott Crockett, Boston, Mass.; Alice Dinsmoor, Sterling, Ill.; Willemena Hannah Elliot, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Abby Farwell, Chicago, Ill.; Charlotte Elizabeth Finch, Morrisania; Annie Barker Folger, San Francisco, Cal.; Alla Wright Foster, Worcester, Mass.; Agnes Wilford Hall, Wallingford, Conn.; Harriet Robinson Harrington, Bennington Centre, Vt.; Ella Strait Hollister, Cincinnati, Ohio; Elizabeth Pomeroy Kirby, Jacksonville, Ill.; Mary Alice Loomis, Binghamton; Elizabeth Merrell, New-York; Sarah Olive Peck, Rochester; Mary Jeannette Rawson, Kingsville, Ohio; Anna Eliza Richardson, Brooklyn; Sarah Elizabeth Rollinson, Brooklyn; Alice Deming Seelye, Cleveland, Ohio; Ada Stanton, Washington, D. C.; Sally McMeens Stem, Sandusky, Ohio; Hattie Lucinda Thornton, Watertown; Mary Elizabeth Van Etten, Chemung; Mattie Marcella Waldron, Otselic; Alice Mary Wetmore, Warren, Penn.

The annual election of College officers and trustees took place this morning, which resulted in many important changes, which will have an effect more or less great on the future system of the institution. In place of Hon. WM. KELLEY and Prof. SAMUEL F. B. MORSE, lately deceased, trustees, Hon. IRA HARRIS and EDWARD BRIGHT, Jr., D. D., were elected. Hon. WM. KELLEY was also elected Chairman. The Executive Committee chosen was as follows: Smith Sheldon, S. M. Buckingham, C. Du Bois, J. C. Doughty, A. S. Allen, George Innis and Ed. Bright.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE.

Prospects of the Institution—The Old President and the New Baccalaureate Sunday.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Monday, June 24, 1872.

The Alumni of Williams have come together this year in great numbers, and with much hope and confidence. There is every reason to expect that the decline under which this institution has for some time suffered will soon be changed into a steady advance. The Alumni have worked hard and accomplished much. There is promise of a large Freshman class next year. Then there is the new President and the new boarding-house. Upon the success of the latter is founded much of the hope for the future of the College. A good substantial building is in process of erection, which is to be used as a student's boarding-house. Here first-class accommodations will be furnished at low cost. The building is nearly completed, and by next year it will be in full operation. This is helping students in just the right way. Young men who are poor and aspire to a liberal education will recognize the advantage that it offers. The town is full, of course. Williamstown is always full during Commencement season, and it is fuller than usual this year, because this anniversary is one of especial interest. "Good-bye" is to be said to a retiring President, and "welcome" to a new one.

THE OLD PRESIDENT AND THE NEW.

MARK HOPKINS, D. D., LL.D., who has just resigned the Presidency of Williams College, was born at Stockbridge, Mass. in 1802, and is consequently seventy years old. He entered the Sophomore class of Williams College in 1822, and graduated with the highest honor in 1824. For two years after graduation he was tutor in his College. He then studied medicine, took his degree and was commencing practice in New-York, when in 1830 he was called to fill the chair of Rhetoric at Williams. In 1836, on the death of Dr. E. D. GRIFFIN, he was chosen President and has occupied that position ever since. Without regular theological training he was licensed to preach the gospel in 1833. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Dartmouth in 1837, and by Harvard in 1841, and that of Doctor of Laws by the Regents of New-York University in 1857. His principal published works are Evidences of Christianity, Lectures on Moral Science, The Law of Love and Love as a Law.

Of these the first is probably the most popular, but it is in his books on moral science that the author's great work is found. In these is contained his peculiar and original theory of the good and the right, which many revile but very few understand. Indeed, Dr. HOPKINS seems to have failed to make his ideas clearly comprehensible in his writings. We doubt if one-tenth part of those who read these books catch their real meaning. One must sit at the feet of this prince of teachers, as, with constant logical advance and illuminating illustration, he unfolds his grand conceptions, fully to understand and appreciate them. They are we think best set forth in Dr. Dexter's last work, "The Law of Love," over which he and Dr. MCCOSH, of Princeton, had their contest through the New-York Observer. Of Dr. HOPKINS' career as instructor and President we need not speak. In both capacities he has achieved a wide-spread and well-earned reputation. As a teacher of his chosen branches, we believe he has no equal in the country. Having thrown off the pressing cares and responsibilities of the Presidential office, Dr. HOPKINS will continue to teach as before.... PAULA. CHADBOURNE, LL.D., President-elect, is a Boston made man. He has worked his way up from the farm to his present position. He was born in North Burwick, Me., in the year 1823. At the age of nineteen he entered Phillips' Exeter Academy, where he supported himself by copying. He became a member of Williams College in 1845, and graduated with the valedictory in 1848. Since that time he has worked hard and constantly, though laboring under the burden of a painful disease. He has held many positions of honor and trust, and has always justified confidence. He has been Professor at Williams and Bowdoin, and in the Berkshire Medical school, and President of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and Madison University. He has also engaged successfully in mercantile enterprises, and has taken some part in politics, having been twice State Senator in Massachusetts. His book on natural theology is used as a text-book in several of our colleges. This work, however, is much better in conception than in execution. Its ideas are good, but the style is wordy and inflated. His later work on Instinct in Animals and Men is very much its superior. President CHADBOURNE is essentially a man of action, prompt, energetic, persistent. Williams College needs just such a man, and its Alumni have strong hopes that their Alma Mater will receive a new inspiration of progress with her new President.

BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY.

At 10½ A. M. Prof. JOHN BASCOM delivered the annual address before the Mills Theological Society. He treated, scientifically, of the "Kingdom of God." Prof. BASCOM is well known, through his works on esthetics, philosophy and religion. He is a deep thinker, and expresses his thoughts concisely, eloquently, but often obscurely. His style is too condensed, and shows too little regard for transitions and connections to be easily intelligible. His effort yesterday was thoroughly characteristic—deep, eloquent, and dim. At 2½ o'clock in the afternoon a large audience assembled in the Congregational Church, to hear President HOPKINS deliver his last Baccalaureate. The house was full to overflowing, and the eyes of very many of his "children" reated lovingly upon the Doctor's reverend form as he passed up the aisle and took his place in the pulpit. On occasions like this Dr. HOPKINS' loss will be especially felt. President CHADBOURNE cannot preach such Baccalaureates as the Alumni of Williams College have for the past thirty-six years been accustomed annually to hear from the lips of him who has now given us his last. Dr. HOPKINS is not, on ordinary occasions a great preacher, but once a year he wrote a grand sermon and kept it for Baccalaureate Sunday. His sermon on this occasion was, of course, listened to with especial interest. He preached on the following words, found in the fifteenth chapter of Ecclesiastes: "That which has been is now, and that which is to be hath already been, and God requireth that which is past." He spoke of two grand movements in the universe, the circular and the onward; the regular and constant succession upon which science is founded, and beyond which science cannot go, and the indefinite expansion and progressive development of which the soul is capable. Toward the close he referred slightly to the change in his relation to the students which was about to take place, and concluded with words of earnest and solemn exortation to the members of the graduating class, the last class that will ever take their degrees from his hand. After this service the regular annual prayer-meeting was held at Mission Park. Here stands the monument of the Hay-stack; on this spot American Foreign Missions were prayed into existence. At this time many realized, as they had not before, the great loss which the College has sustained during the past year. Prof. ALBERT HOPKINS, a brother of the retiring President, who died but a few weeks ago, took a deep interest in the work of missions. He loved and always led this mission prayer-meeting. His name was mentioned with deep affection and regret by all who took part in the exercises yesterday. Rev. Dr. DORUS CLARK led the meeting. Prayer was offered by Rev. Drs. GALE, of Lee, and TAYLOR, of Bingham-ton, and by President CHADBOURNE. Addresses were made by Rev. Mr. GROUT, of the India Mission, and Rev. Mr. MACCASKIN, of the Mission among the Jews.

In the evening Rev. Dr. S. IRENÆUS PRIME, of New-York, preached a poor sermon on the words, "He is altogether lovely," taken from Solomon's Song. TERRETT.

City College Literary Societies.

Last evening the Kelly Prize Debate between the literary societies of the College of the City of New-York took place in the College building, Twenty-third-street and Lexington-avenue. Some years ago Mr. JAMES KELLY donated the sum of $1,000 to the College, and the interest of this sum forms a fund for the purchase of two medals, to be awarded at the annual commencements to the best debaters. Last night the question for discussion was "Has science done more for the welfare of mankind than literature?" The affirmative was taken by the Pirrenscosmian Societies, represented by Messrs. JOHN B. MCMASTER, A. H. STOIBER and SHEPPARD BANKS. The negative side was supported by the Clionian Society, represented by Messrs. S. J. STRAUSS, SAMUEL J. BEACH and HENRY LOENTHAL. The debate was an animated one, but the judges, R. L. LARREMORE, S. B. H. VANCE, and T. DENNY reserved their decision. Messrs. STOIBER and BEACH were the most applauded by the audience, but this affords no criterion of the result. The scene of debate was the large hall at the top of the building, and during a part of the debate the noise of the falling rain on the roof was so loud that the speaker was obliged to desist.

The regular annual meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa Society (Delta Chapter of New-York) was held yesterday at Columbia College, in Fiftieth-street, between Madison and Fourth-avenues. The following gentlemen were elected new members: Frederick Augustus Brown, Clarence Cushing Egerton, Robert Ray Hamilton, of the Senior Class; of the Junior Class, Messrs. Sutherland Tenney, Frederick Remsen Hutton, Isaac Lefferts Strebeigh. The officers for the ensuing year were then elected.

Clarke's Collegiate Institute.

The students of the senior department of the Mount Washington Collegiate institution gave a very pleasant elocutionary and dramatic entertainment yesterday afternoon in the school hall. Scenes were enacted from "Julius Cæsar" and various original farces were performed with much spirit and comicality. A selection from Margaret of Arno was delivered by a young gentleman named RICE with considerable power and unusual modulation of voice. The hall was crowded with the friends and relatives of the boys, whose efforts were rewarded with constant applause. Today the graduates of the college, seventeen in number, will receive their diplomas from the hand of the Principal, in the great hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, Twenty-third-street. On similar occasions vast numbers are in the habit of attending, as the institution has been in successful career for thirty years, and is one of the best known in New-York.

Meeting of the Alumni Association of Union College.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 25.—The Alumni Association of Union College had a large and enthusiastic meeting this morning. Hon. HENRY R. PIERSON presided. Hon. THOMAS ALLEN, of St. Louis, and other prominent graduates were present. SILAS B. BROWNALL, of New-York, and CHARLES E. SMITH, of Albany, were unanimously elected members of the Board of Trustees. Great interest is manifested in the inauguration of Rev. Dr. POTTER as President, and in the Commencement exercises to-morrow.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

The Claims of the Discharged Court-House Employes—A Special Committee Investigating the Bills.

The Special Committee of the Board of Supervisors, consisting of Messrs. VAN SHAICK, (Chairman,) MARTIN, and CONOVER, appointed to investigate the claims of the men employed by the Court-house Commissioners for the care and maintenance of the County Court-house and lately discharged, met yesterday in the committee-room of the Board of Supervisors.

The Committee had before them two lists of employes and amounts due—one furnished by the Controller, a copy of the pay-roll supplied him by the Secretary of the Court-house Commissioners, and the other furnished by the men themselves, in which the amounts due are more than on the official list, the excess being, the men allege, for extra work. This latter list was sworn to before a notary as being correct.

The men appeared in gangs before the Committee, and were each questioned as to whether they performed work for which they make claims. Replying in the affirmative, they were then sworn by a notary who was present.

As to the claims for extra work, the Committee explained, that as they (the men) swear they have done service for it, they (the Committee) would do all in their power to have the claims paid; but they advised the men to accept the amounts on the official list, and thereby avoid further delay.

The following is a complete list of the employes and the amounts due, as furnished by the Secretary to the Court-house Commissioners:

The men not only swore to having themselves performed the service, but also that their associates did their work.

During the examination several men, whose names were not on the pay-roll, came before the Committee and made claims for work done. Among them was Ex-Alderman JOHN H. BRADY, for services as assistant janitor, from August, 1871, to 1st June inst.—amount, $592. When asked if he attended at the Court-house every day, he replied: "Well, not every day; I don't want to tell no lies, but I did as much work as the others. (Assuming a confidential tone.) I have been like you, gentlemen, at one time, and you can arrange this matter."

The COMMITTEE—We can't arranze it. The only thing we can do is to make a note that you made this claim.

BRADY—Suppose I get Mr. COMAN to say that I performed the service; will not that do? I don't want no long investigation in this matter.

The COMMITTEE—We cannot suggest what you are to do. We can only deal with claims of those whose names are on the pay-roll before us.

BRADY then retired, but returned in a few minutes and repeated what he before asked as to the sufficiency of Mr. COMAN'S certification that he served as janitor. The Committee refusing to suggest anything or to do farther than take a note of the matter, BRADY went away.

CHARLES BAULCH, the alleged voucher robber and associate of HAGERTY, was called, when almost all the others on the list were disposed of. He handed in a communication in which he claims salary as "Captain of the Janitors," for the time he was imprisoned as well as for the period he alleges he was doing service.

Supervisor VAN SCHAICK—This claim of yours is not on the pay-roll; payment for twenty days is all you are allowed on it. But now looking at this matter from a business point of view do you think an employe in a mercantile house who was arrested for robbery is not thereby discharged, or that he must get a formal notice of discharge? I think he is discharged, and cannot claim salary while he is in prison.

BAULCH—Well, that is my claim, and I suppose I must sue the City for it.

The Committee soon after adjourned. They will, as directed by the resolution creating the special Committee, make a certification of the correctness of the pay-roll to the Controller, who is thereupon authorized and directed by the Board of Supervisors to pay the men.

It almost escaped mention that there was another claimant for services whose name is on the pay-roll. He was dissatisfied with the amount allowed. When questioned he admitted that he was in attendance every day: that he was taking care of a store he opened in Eldridge-street several days; but, he added, I did as much work as any of the rest of them.

Late yesterday afternoon a dispatch was received in Paterson, announcing that the Court had accepted the view of the physicians of Paterson, and the majority of the citizens of Paterson, and had agreed that the infliction of the death penalty upon LIBBIE GARRABRANT would not promote the ends of justice. THE WANT OF AGES is supplied in CASTORIA. Purgation without pain is one of its results. It purifies without weakening the system. It restores the functions of the liver. It contains no morphine, yet promotes sleep. It helps the food to assimilate and does not "gag," and is pleasant to take. It is at once the mildest and most searching of aperients. No marvel, therefore, that it is superseding all the drastic evacuants.
